THE REBEL INVASION.

Approach of the Rebels to Harrisburgh.

Their Advance Near the Fortifications.

Some Shelling During Yesterday Afternoon.

Burning of the Bridge Near Columbia by Our Forces.

A SKIRMISH AT WRIGHTSVILLE.

Two Rebel Cavalry Companies Defeated Below York.

Rapid Organization of Troops at Harrisburgh.

NO GENERAL ENGAGEMENT.

TELEGRAMS FROM HARRISBURGH.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

Our forces have slowly retired, and are now in and around the fortifications of Harrisburgh. The enemy is advancing slowly, and in all probability will soon commence an attack. Gen. Smith has made proper disposition of his troops.

Throughout the day men have been coming to the defense of the city, in response to the Governor's proclamation. Among the number are a great many contrabands. They were all furnished with guns and ammunition, and sent across the Susquehanna.

Capt. BAINBRIDGE, Chief of Cavalry, who was on a reconnoissance this afternoon, reports the rebel scouts to have been within three miles of our pickets.

The reports from the direction of York are very soothing. An extra train was run to Philadelphia at 12, noon.

LATER.—The enemy fired several shots from a position west of Oyster Point this afternoon. WRIT.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

The enemy is within four miles of our works, advancing.

The firing of the artillery is distinctly heard.

The troops are all in position, awaiting the attack.

The authorities feel confident of their ability to repulse the rebels.

A battle will probably take place before night.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, so far, is safe.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—1 o'clock P. M.

A conflict is now going on in this vicinity, and the cannonading can be heard here.

No particulars have yet been received.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—3 P. M.

The rebels are within three miles, and are throwing shells.

Our troops are within the intrenchments and will make a bold stand.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—5 P. M.

The bridge over the Susquehanna at Columbia is in flames.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—Midnight.

The city, to-day, has been comparatively quiet, considering the near approximation of the enemy.

The trains departing from here have been crowded with people from the city.

York has been occupied, and a portion of the bridges on the Northern Central Railroad, this side of that place, have been burned.

When our troops fell back from Carlisle, they left in the barracks equipments for one company of cavalry and one regiment of infantry, and 20,000 rations, which have fallen into the hands of the enemy. There is a report that the barracks have been burned but it has not been confirmed.

The report of the capture of York last night was rather premature. In the afternoon, the Chief Burgess of the City in company with some prominent citizens, hearing the rebels were coming, started out to meet them to surrender the city. They had to go seven miles before they met the advance. In the meantime the operator, believing the chief burgess had been captured telegraphed that the rebels were coming into the town, and then left. A fight took place late this afternoon at Wrightsville, opposite Columbia.

The troops which were guarding the Northern Central Railroad retreated to Columbia Bridge on the approach of the enemy, and all crossed to this side of the river, except Col. FRAZ's regiment, who remained at Wrightsville to guard the bridge. The rebels attacked him in heavy force, and in order to save his men he was forced to cross to Columbia. The magnificent bridge was then burned to prevent the rebels from reaching this side of the river.

The Governor has information that the rebels are at Bainbridge, twelve miles above Columbia, with a pontoon train sufficiently large to construct a bridge.

The rebels that drove our men from Sterrett's Gap yesterday, and then moved toward Dunneannon, have returned to the Gap.

No demonstration has been made on the Pennsylvania Railroad in that direction to-day, so far as is known.

Col. WYNKOOP has been appointed by Gen. COOPER, Chief of Cavalry in this Department—Capt. ENSLEY having been ordered to his regiment.

Troops under the new call are rapidly arriving. Two companies of colored troops, composed of citizens of this place, were armed to-day and sent across the river.

Col. JENNISON's regiment, which had the skirmish at Gettysburgh, arrived here to-day. He lost about 300 men in prisoners and stragglers. The officers were sent to Richmond and the men paroled. Some of the latter have arrived here.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—Midnight.

It rests with the rebels when the fight shall open. Our forces in and out of Fort Washington are ready and in good spirits. At six P. M. EWELL's pickets were discovered only two or three miles off. Gen. COOPER and the Governor, with their assistants, have been busied night and day in perfecting arrangements for defense, and the prospect of success to our arms, in the event of a spirited engagement, is better this evening than any time before. The fight promises to be steadily continued by our volunteers. All KANE's command is now withdrawn to this neighborhood.

The inhabitants of Harrisburgh are not disheartened. No panic as yet, nor prospect of any.

We cannot yet estimate accurately EWELL's strength.

The New-York Seventy-first has seen great hardships, but is in good condition, having not lost a man nor a particle of equipage or any sort.

A great many ladies are determined to stay through the trouble, no matter what may come. But little valuable property can fall into rebel hands, should our troops be overpowered by superior numbers.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28—Midnight.

The artillery firing heard to-day was a skirmish between the enemy's advance and our outposts. No damage is known to have been done on either side. It occurred about five miles from here. Our troops then fell back, and up to the present time the rebel advance is four miles from here. The authorities expect an attack to-morrow.

The Governor has received notice of 20,000 men, who have enlisted under the last call.

TELEGRAMS FROM LANCASTER.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sunday, June 28, 1863.

The great bridge over the Susquehanna near Columbia is at this moment in flames. The firmament is illuminated by it even at this distance. It was fired by our own people to prevent the enemy from crossing.

Two rebel companies of cavalry attacked four companies of the Twentieth Pennsylvania regiment last night below York, but were driven off badly whipped. Our loss was insignificant.

There is no fighting at Harrisburgh yet.

A skirmish occurred in Wrightsville, opposite Columbia, three hours ago. Col. FRAZ's men fought the enemy in their rifle-pits gallantly, till surrounded and overpowered. Over one hundred were captured, and the rest retreated across the bridge, which was then fired.

The bridge was one mile and a quarter long, and worth a million.

The excitement here now amounts to a panic. Everything is leaving.

The rolling stock of the Northern Central and that of the Hanover Branch Roads have all passed down.

TROOPS ORGANIZING IN SCRANTON, PENN.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sunday, June 28.

A full company composed of our best and largest business men and other citizens is now organized. One other company is full, and another will be filled to-night. The two latter are to receive a bounty of $62 per man, the money being subscribed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad and the Lackawanna Iron and Coal Companies, and the citizens. Stirring speeches have been made by the clergy, Hon. JOHN SCRANTON, and others, and everybody is wakened up. The troops are expected to go to Harrisburgh in the morning.

THE EXCITEMENT IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28.

The excitement in this city is intense. Third-street is thronged with people awaiting the news.

The merchants have resolved to close their stores and recruit a regiment immediately.

The Union League has also started in the matter.

The Corn Exchange Guard have a recruiting party marching through the streets.

THE EXCITEMENT IN NORRISTOWN.

NORRISTOWN, PENN., Sunday, June 28.

The manufacturers have determined to close their works until the rebels are driven from the State, and have raised $10,000 to pay the wages of all who volunteer during their absence. Five hundred men will leave for Harrisburgh in the morning.

A QUESTIONABLE REPORT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28.

The report from Harrisburgh, at midnight of Saturday, that the rebels had arrived opposite Duncannon, at the junction of the Juniata and Susquehanna Rivers, is probably an error, as the telegraph line remains in order to Pittsburgh this (Sunday) morning.

GEN. DANA TO THE PHILADELPHIANS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 28—2:30 A. M.

Gen. DANA has entered upon his duties, and yesterday issued the following address:

HEADQUARTERS, PHILADELPHIA, June 27, 1863.

CITIZENS OF PHILADELPHIA: Prepare to defend your homes. The traitors who have spread desolation in the southern counties of your State, and carried into captivity free men and women, because they were black and under your protection, approach your city. Their strategy is sufficiently well understood to make it certain that their object is Philadelphia. Do the citizens of the Quaker City expect more favorable treatment at their hands than others? Arise now in your might; shake off your apathy, and show, by rallying rapidly and arming yourselves to meet the enemy and drive him back, that you deserve the blessings of a home. To stand idly now would invite suspicion either of treachery or cowardice. I urge upon the citizens of Philadelphia that they close all places of manufacture at noon, and all other places of business at 3 o'clock P. M. of each day, devoting the remainder of the day to military organization and instruction. Let companies of from sixty to a hundred men each be rapidly organized, and having chosen their officers, let them report their organization at headquarters, and stand ready for service at a moment's notice. There is not a moment to be lost, and therefore let us not squander away valuable time.

N. J. T. DANA, Major-Gen. Commanding.

A DESPERATE CAVALRY FIGHT.

A Squadron of Scott's 900 Cavalry Surrounded and Cut Up.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, June 27.

A squadron of Scott's Nine Hundred cavalry, under Maj. REMINGTON, on their way to Centreville, this morning, encountered near Fairfax the Sixth Virginia cavalry, and dashed at them with the sabre. The Major made two charges, and drove the enemy for three miles into a wood, and there encountered a superior force, that checked him with the fire of carbines. The fight from the beginning to the end was fierce. Its termination, from the overwhelming disparity of numbers, was disastrous.

Maj. REMINGTON, after having had his horse shot twice, cut his way out and made his escape with eighteen men. Five have come in since. Eighty are reported as either killed, wounded or missing. Among them are Capt. DUDWELL, Capt. CARPENTER and Lieut. HASLEHURST. The companies were B and C.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Capt. DUDWELL, of Company C, Scott's Nine Hundred, has been heard of as in Virginia. Lieut. HASLEHURST wounded in the neck, but not severely.

Only six dead of the squadron were found to-day on the battle-ground.

A Raid by Fitzhugh Lee at Annandale.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

A large number of rebel cavalry under command of Fitzhugh Lee, yesterday made a dash into Annandale, capturing several sutlers who were in the vicinity, and burning a number of Hospital stores, sutlers' wagons, etc.

All the papers found in the neighborhood were gathered up and burned. Two sutlers' goods were taken off. Some dozen parties connected with the Commissary department, among them Mr. LEE of Alexandria, who were out reconnoitering, were also made prisoners. Lieut. DUDWELL, with about a dozen men in charge of some rebel prisoners, were also captured, and DUDWELL shot in the neck. Most of the rebels had our blue pants, and many of them were mounted on horses marked U. S. The whole number captured by them amounts to about forty. Mr. S. TAYLOR, Army purveyor, was captured and released by Gen. LEE. Mr. DUNN, clerk to the former gentleman, escaped by secreting himself on their approach.

THE TWO ARMIES.

Gen. Hooker Reported Relieved of His Command of the Army of the Potomac.

GEN. MEADE PUT IN HIS PLACE.

The Entire Army on the North Side of the Potomac.

THE MOVEMENTS OF LEE.

The Whole Rebel Army Entering Pennsylvania.

Destruction of the Northern Central Railroad.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sunday, June 28—11 P. M.

We accept as truth the rumor that Gen. Hooker has been relieved of the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Meade put in his place.

The defences of Washington are sufficient against legions of mounted infantadamalions. The National Capital is safe.

The return game between the Army of the Potomac and the Army of Virginia may be played this week. Let the country wait for the score.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Gen. HOOKER was last night relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac, at his own request, and Gen. MEADE appointed his successor.

THE NEWS IN HARRISBURGH.

HARRISBURGH, Sunday, June 28.

Official information has been received here that Gen. HOOKER is relieved and Gen. MEADE appointed his successor.

SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, June 27.

The entire Army of the Potomac is now on the north side of the Potomac. The respective positions of the various corps it would not be proper to indicate.

A portion of our cavalry is operating in the advance, and the remainder in the rebel rear.

There are no rebels now on South Mountain or at Boonsboro. They appear to be concentrating near Sharpsburgh. A. P. HILL's corps crossed the river at Williamsport yesterday, and are now in Hagerstown. The whole rebel army is now on this side of the Potomac.

BRADLEY T. JOHNSON's brigade was in Smithsburgh yesterday, passing toward Gettysburgh. Col. LEGGE's regiment of cavalry accompanied them.

Wagon trains, loaded with grain, have passed through Smithsburgh toward Hagerstown, retiring from Pennsylvania; also large droves of cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses. The negroes captured throughout the country were impressed by the rebels into their service as drivers.

The rebels had a number of small mountain howitzers with them.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, June 27.

Information was received at about 5 o'clock this afternoon, from Glen Rock, that the rebels were then at Hanover Junction, tearing up the railroad track. The operator there left as they approached, and came down to Glen Rock, from which point he communicated these facts.

The following information relative to the rebel movements may be considered as reliable:

The last of LONGSTREET's army corps passed through Hagerstown yesterday morning, going toward Pennsylvania. It was preceded by A. P. HILL's corps. Gen. LEE also passed through Hagerstown yesterday.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28—Noon.

The telegraph is working to Glen Rock, on the Northern Central Railroad line, this morning, six miles this side of Hanover Junction.

Rebel Raid Across the Potomac at Seneca Mills.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28.

It is reported that a rebel force of three thousand cavalry with seven pieces of artillery, crossed the Potomac at Seneca, Montgomery County, last night and this morning, took the Darnstown road, as if for the purpose of attempting to reach either the Washington road or the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The rebels have burnt two bridges this side of York, and two beyond, so far as known. A train went up the Northern Central road to-day as far as Parkton. No rebels had been seen at Glen Rock, and the force at Hanover Junction had left, going it is supposed, toward York.

IMPORTANT FROM TENNESSEE.

Gen. Rosecrans' Army in Motion Toward the Enemy.

Camp Broken on Wednesday Morning Last.

The Troops Advancing Toward Duck River in Three Columns.

Possible Retreat of Bragg on Chattanooga.

Reported Capture of Three Thousand Rebels at Hoover's Gap.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MURFREESBORO, TENN., Wednesday, June 24, 1863.

I have barely more than time to announce to you by this morning's mail, that the whole Army of the Cumberland is in motion. The silence of five months is broken by the tramp of solid columns marching on to meet the enemy once more—the same enemy which on the first day of the present year was driven from his position at this place.

Bright and early this morning, the camps were broken, and the army began its onward march, with twelve days' provisions—three in the haversacks of the men, and nine in wagons.

McCOOK's corps (the Twentieth) has the right, THOMAS' (the Fourteenth) has the centre, and CRITTENDEN's (the Twenty-first) has the left. These columns move by different but converging roads—the objective point being the enemy's position along the Duck River. Our flanks are well covered by our excellent cavalry force—one division, (MINTON's) being on the right, the other, (WILSON's) on the left.

The distance from Murfreesboro to BRAGG's headquarters at Shelbyville, by the direct road, running due south from here, is twenty-eight miles, and our right will have this road; but our centre and left, which have to make detours by way of Bradyville and Manchester, will have a distance of double that extent to traverse.

It will of course depend entirely on the enemy how much fighting we have to do before reaching his front on Duck river; but the probability is that we shall have skirmishing almost all the way, with the advanced force and corps of observation on front and flank. This is the customary policy of the enemy, as it gives them time to find out our intentions and make dispositions to meet them. A trifling force can make a whole column halt and form line of battle two or three times a day. It is probable, therefore, that although even with the circuit we shall make, we are only two good days' march from the rebel position, yet it will be Saturday, Sunday or Monday, before we get into a general engagement.

The rebels will be able to take up a good defensive position on the line of the Duck. They have ride-pits covering the front of Shelbyville for four or five miles, across east and west, and another line it is said from Shelbyville to the Normandy Hills; but it is not believed that their artificial defenses are of a very formidable nature. The Duck River is at the present moment quite low and fordable at most places.

Our strategic maneuvre, I take it, will be on the enemy's right flank, and will endeavor if possible to grasp his communications.

Many here are of the opinion that BRAGG will not make a stand at Shelbyville, Tullahoma, or, indeed, anywhere along the line of the Duck; but that he will, after embarrassing our progress as much as possible, fall back to the line of the Tennessee River, in the vicinity of Chattanooga.

It is, of course, possible that he may do so; and this would certainly be a course that would not jump with our wishes, as we should have made our march for nothing, and added thirty miles to a line of communications already too deep. A movement against Chattanooga at this time and with our present force is, I fear, out of the question.

There are, however, several considerations that will prompt him to hold on to his present position; and if he abandons it, it will be because his force has lately been so much reduced that he fears a battle. His retreat will give us to us the whole of this region of Middle Tennessee, in which a crop of cereals is at the present moment ripening, unprecedented in its yield. They are so anxious to have command of it, that they have for some days had a detail of ten men from each company of the ninety-six regiments of BRAGG's army out gathering it in. We shall be very apt to disturb their harvesting operations. It also brings us into a dense slave population, hitherto untapped, where the emancipation proclamation will have a fine field of operation, under an army which marches on

"Shouting the battle cry of Freedom."

With reference to the all-important question touching the strength of BRAGG's force, that is a matter difficult to settle. In a former letter I told you that several brigades had gone to reinforce JOHNSTON, but gave it as the opinion of the best authorities that no great material reduction of the rebel force had taken place. There seems now to be good evidence that within the past two or three days, a considerable diminution has taken place, and almost the whole of Cheatham's division is reported to have gone to Mississippi. If this be really so, it of course adds to our chances of whipping the rebel army, but it also does to the chances that Bragg will fall back without giving us an opportunity for battle. If he adopts this latter policy, you must anticipate in expectations of much in the way of pursuit. BRAGG is a master at retreat; he moves with as an excessive lightness, and he has his line of retreat entirely open.

If you will recur to the considerations presented in the elaborate article on the strategic relations of the forces in this theatre of war, published in the TIMES a fortnight ago, you will see that we have little reason to hope that we shall be able to give a decisive battle on the line of the Duck River. I may say that these views are shared by all sound heads in this army. They counsel to indicate the prudence of holding ourselves here until a solution of the complications on the Mississippi would authorize our entering on a campaign from which we might really hope for great decisive results. The reasons for an advance, however, now press much stronger than they did a fortnight ago.

Although in previous speculations the weight of opinion has been against an advance, at the present time, yet, now that it is actually inaugurated, a great activity, which and vigor are displayed, and everybody is bending his energies to the great task.

My last letter will have given you an idea of the superb condition, both morally and materially, of this army. The hackneyed phrase is literally true—the men are "eager for the fray."

It is possible that we may be more fortunate than I at present look for. I pray Heaven we may be! We may be able, by a rapid and vigorous advance, to compel a battle that will be more or less decisive, and a cavalry expedition to cut off their railroad communications with Chattanooga is on the programme. We shall also have the harvests in which they are looking to feed their already pinched soldiery within. If we get command of the line of the Duck, either with or without a battle, it will probably be made an eventual base. The railroad track between here and Shelbyville, with the exception of about two miles, is said to be entirely undisturbed, and we shall be able to bring up supplies rapidly. For the present we take twelve days' rations—three days in the haversacks of the men and nine in the wagons.

I write, booted and spurred—my horse held at the door by the Orderly—and have merely time to close this letter, as Gen. ROSECRANS and Staff, whom I accompany, are already (1 P. M.) mounting for the road. Headquarters to-night will be at Dug Hollow Spring, on the Manchester pike road, fifteen miles from Murfreesboro. WILLIAM SWINTON.

Reported Capture of Three Thousand Rebels—Gallant Cavalry Fight, etc.

LOUISVILLE, Sunday, June 28.

To-day's Nashville Union reports that one division of the Federal army captured 3,000 rebels, on Saturday, when going through Hoover's Gap. There are no further particulars.

The Union also states that the Seventeenth Indiana mounted infantry, being mounted by four regiments of rebel infantry, cut their way through, taking a number of prisoners. Col. MILLER, of Gen. NEGLEY's division, is reported wounded in the eye.

A special dispatch from Manchester, Tennessee, to the Louisville Journal, says, Col. WILDER's mounted infantry dashed into Manchester, capturing a large party of rebels, including Capt. ANDERSON of the First Kentucky (rebel) cavalry. WILDER's scouts captured yesterday a courier from MORGAN and WHEELER's command with important dispatches.

BRAGG reviewed the rebel troops at Hoover's Gap on the morning of the battle.

Col. WILDER's forces burned the trestle-work, yesterday, on the Manchester and Tullahoma Road.

The Chattanooga Rebel, of the 25th, says firing continues with increasing rapidity at Vicksburgh.

AMUSEMENTS.

The record of the week is unusually scanty. Not a single novelty has been produced at any of the Broadway theatres, of which three only remain open. The regular season is ended, and we are now in the dead calm that precedes the fitful Summer one. Mr. WALLACK brought his campaign to an end on Monday last. Every one will be glad to hear that it was in the highest degree successful. Half a dozen theatres, conducted with similar purpose and pains, would also succeed in New-York. The company will reassemble in September next for the regular performances. It is rumored also that a few of the number will essay a Summer season, playing light pieces in the approved style. Mr. MARK SMITH commences his experiment at the Winter Garden on Monday next, and will be supported by an excellent company. Miss EMILY THORNE and Mr. DAN SETCHELL are both members of it, and the personnelle generally is of a kind to warrant the most pleasant anticipations. Mr. MARK SMITH has a widespread and well-earned reputation, which will, we hope, attail him now.

The stirring and excellent drama of the "Duke's Motto" continues to attract overwhelming houses to Niblo's Garden. It remains, of course, on the bill until further notice. At LAURA KEENE's theatre the play of the "Wives of Paris" is still the attraction. It shows a little of everything, and exhibits the peculiar excellencies of Mrs. EMELINE's company. At Barnum's Museum, in addition to the usual attractions, the new drama of the "Duke's Device" will be repeated.

We have on several occasions spoken of the Stereopticon now on exhibition at Irving Hall. The science of optics seldom come to us in so acceptable a form. The instrument, indeed, has created a new pleasure, enabling the cosmopolitan to revisit the scenes of his travels, and the stay-at-home to see something of the world. Many new views have been added during the past week; a special exhibition was given for the purpose of introducing them on Tuesday last. The repertoire of the Stereopticon is so extensive, that frequent visits are necessary to do it justice. The exhibition is one that is peculiarly suited to the Summer months. There is no trouble from the heat, the gas being turned down in the hall during the performance. We heartily recommend every one to witness this remarkable entertainment, which we may here add gains much of its interest from the well chosen remarks of Mr. REES, who briefly explains the pictures.

Mr. MARETZEK's season at the Academy of Music will commence immediately on the termination of the American Institute Fair which is held in that building during the month of September. The impresario is already making preparations for the campaign. Mme. MEROZI will return in time for the opening, and it is said that PATTI, the composer of "Ione," has at her solicitation accepted Mr. MARETZEK's invitation to write a new opera for the Academy and visit America expressly for its production. It is only the leading opera houses of Europe that have works written expressly for them; but Mr. MARETZEK sees no reason why the metropolis of America should be behind either London or Paris in this particular. Nor do we; but—will it pay at present prices, especially as orchestra-players have added twenty-five per cent to their rates?

Cruise of the Blackstone.

The steamer Blackstone arrived at this port yesterday, from a cruise from Sandy Rock to the Banks, under command of A. S. BALDWIN, Commander U. S. N. Her officers are, Commander A. S. BALDWIN; Acting-Master, F. S. BENSON; Acting-Master's Mate, E. P. PARKER.

The Blackstone spoke during her cruise the following vessels: June 17, bark Ada Carter, brig Rose, schooner D. H. Ellis, Emma Further, David Smith, Joseph Fish; 18th, barks Kepler, Alamo, Albion, Lincoln, brigantine Lemonlighter, brigs St. Vincent, Reformer, Georgiana J. Blakmore, George Amos, and pilot-boat Ezra Nye, of New-York; 19th, ship Missouri, barks St. Olaf, Holland; 20th, ship Byzantium, United States bark Trinity; 21st, bark Serafin; 22d, British ship Corsair, brig Alliance, United States schooner Kittatinny; 23d, ship Victoria, barks Essex, Gambrino; 24th, barks Edward Walker, brig Pacopo, schooner Emma G. Carter, Nantucket lightship, and New-York pilot-boat Fannie and Mary Catherine; 25th, United States steamer Curlew, ship Caroline Nesmith, bark Waltham, brig Annabella; 26th, ship W. Libby, bark R. H. Knight, brig St. Peter, schooners Sarah Caroline, Margaret Ann, Electric Light, also New-York pilot-boats Fannie and Isaac Webb; 27th, whale ship Mary Ann from Pacific Ocean for New-Bedford, 40 days out, with 1,200 barrels sperm; ships Australia, Wm. Freddingham, bark Jane, United States steamer Sacramento.

The British ship Corsair was boarded 22d in lat. 40° 37', long. 68° 52'; at 2:30 P. M., and was boarded same afternoon by the Tacony. The Corsair was standing to the westward with an easterly wind, and the Blackstone was steaming to the westward steering west south-west, the weather being so foggy as to prevent an engage; a gander cleaner than three sailor. The pilot-boat Fannie subsequently spoke the Corsair, and ascertained that she had been boarded by the Tacony on the 23d.

The Corsair was an English ship, and her master an Englishman, and it is inferred that he informed the Tacony that a pursuer was close aboard of him. Since that the Blackstone traversed and retraversed the locality where she might probably be without hearing anything of her.

GEN. DIX'S DEPARTMENT.

An Important and Successful Expedition.

Total Destruction of the Bridge Over the South Anna River.

Capture of Gen. W. F. Lee and a Number of Other Rebel Officers.

A Large Amount of Public Property Secured.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 28.

Major-Gen. DIX telegraphs as follows:

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, June 28.

Col. SPEAR, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania cavalry, whom I sent out two days ago, completely destroyed the bridge over the South Anna, captured Gen. W. F. LEE, Col. HEARTSILL, four Captains, five Lieutenants and one hundred privates, and brought them in. He has also brought in thirty-five wagons, with six mules each, and one hundred and fifty mules in addition, and from seventy-five to one hundred horses. He took $15,000 in Confederate bonds, just issued, from an agent of the authorities at Richmond. This is all public property. No private property has been touched. Col. SPEAR's loss is three killed and eight wounded.

A PANIC IN RICHMOND.

APPREHENSIONS OF AN ATTACK

BALTIMORE, Sunday, June 28.

Refugees who have reached the Army of the Potomac from Richmond, represent that there was quite a panic there. Only a very small guard was left there, and many of the citizens were leaving and going to Staunton. This would seem to indicate that the Richmond people are rather uneasy at the almost total abandonment of that city by the rebel forces.

Military Movements in Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sunday, June 28.

Gov. SMITH last night called out the Providence Marine Artillery to protect the west passage in Narragansett Bay. They went to-day to take position on Dutch Island and the mainland opposite with their five guns. They will be able to guard that important passage.

The Newport Artillery are also ordered to guard the east passage.

The President has authorized these movements.

Arrival of Captured Crews.

GLOUCESTER, Sunday, June 28.

The pilot-boat Wanderer, of Newburyport, has arrived with the crews of the schooners Ada, Wanderer and Archer, captured by the bark Tacony and put on board the ship Shakuna, which vessel is now in sight, bound to Boston.

Pennsylvania and New-York.

NEW-YORK, Sunday, June 28, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

You inveigh, with natural, if not just indignation, against the apathy and want of public spirit shown by the people of Pennsylvania in the present danger, and somewhat discouragingly ask the reason. Is it not that Pennsylvania is helpless and seemingly apathetic, because panic-stricken, and is she not panic-stricken because unprepared?

I would ask you, Is New-York better prepared to meet invasion? Is the thought of danger to our State more ridiculous to-day than the thought of danger to Pennsylvania was to her people two months ago? Is New-York so very much further from the rebels at Pittsburgh, than Pittsburgh was from the rebels in Richmond? And if between LEE in Virginia and the helpless Pennsylvanians stood HOOKER with his veterans, unable to prevent the mischief, what, I ask you, stands between LEE in Pennsylvania and our helpless selves? Is LEE, with all the material resources of Pennsylvania at his control, less formidable to New-York than he was to Pennsylvania when cooped up in the wasted and barren valleys of Virginia? Does not our boasted superiority in material resources seem to dwindle somewhat at this thought? Is New-York, cut off from Washington, so sure of steady self-control in danger, as we are wont to think? What could we oppose at short notice to the flushed and newly mounted veterans of LONGSTREET and LEE?

I ask again:

Is New-York prepared?

Are we aware that the hour of need is nigh?

Can men hope to risk such insult as the vengeance of our Southern enemies has long stored up for such rage and humiliation and despair?

Do not, I beg of you, refuse to insert this, on the ground of panic-making. Even a panic now were better than our utter blindness and most reckless confidence. You have not heretofore shown want of moral courage. Be not now less brave. Be bold to point out danger, and thereby avert it. J. S. H.

Obituary.

—Clinton Cassedy, brother of one of the editors of the Albany Argus, died on June 26, of consumption. He was educated at St. St. Mary's College, Maryland, and at Worcester, Mass. As President of the Young Men's Association, as Assistant Adjutant-General, and afterward as City Attorney, he discharged his duties faithfully and conscientiously, and always with ability and success. To the last mentioned office he was reelected, several weeks ago, without a dissenting vote.

—Major-Gen. Stoneman is on a brief visit to his home in Jamestown, Chautauqua County. On his arrival he was received and welcomed in a neat and appropriate speech by Hon. A Hazeltine. The General responded in a soldier-like and patriotic manner. He said he knew no party, and no policy but to subdue the rebellion and restore the Union. It was the business of the Government, that is the people by their representatives, to devise a policy, and the duty of the soldier to act and obey.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN COMMERCE.

Mr. Ruggles' Speech at the Chicago Canal Convention, on the Fiscal Effects of Opening the Transit of Food, June 25, 1863.

On the second day of the Convention, and shortly before it adjourned, Mr. S. B. Ruggles, Commissioner and Delegate from the State of New-York, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That this Convention is of opinion that the immediate opening of the Canal, and improvement thereof, by cheapening the transportation of Western products, through the enlarged canals, will so far increase the foreign commerce of the country, that the import duties on the various cargoes will far exceed the interest on the cost of the proposed works, and provide a fund for its rapid reimbursement, to each and all of the States and Cities which have contributed to the construction of the Canal.

In asking the attention of the Convention for a few moments to the subject of this resolution, Mr. Ruggles expressed his fears that it might possibly interfere with the earlier speaker's desire or a portion of the audience to listen to political harangues on the rebellion and kindred topics. He would only claim for the resolution, the co-operative merit of being somewhat kindred to the objects for which this Canal Convention was assembled, and would seek to enforce its passage only by a brief statement of a few simple facts.

Much had been said as to the merits and necessities of various channels of national intercommunication, having for their object the military defense of the country, and also the cheapening of the transit of food to the seaboard, but, as yet, little or nothing, as to their probable cost, or the means possessed by the nation for reimbursing it.

He should not stop on this occasion to sum up the various elements of national and fiscal strength to be called into being by the construction of the proposed works, and especially and manifestly the creation and increase of large, and populous, and prosperous communities, rich in every species of property and industry, and able to contribute liberally in taxes and imposts to the support of the Government, but would seek to specify and point his argument exclusively on the very moneys with which the nation could immediately pay for the proposed works, and which would be, moreover, furnished by the works themselves.

For this purpose he begged to repeat, and he stood ready to prove the truth of the proposition contained in the resolution now under consideration, to wit: "that the import duties to be paid into the National Treasury upon the return cargoes purchased by the additional revenue of the canal, will not only exceed the interest on the cost of all the works needed to secure that revenue, but will provide a fund for its rapid reimbursement."

I know not, said Mr. RUGGLES, how to state this proposition more plainly or precisely, nor can I believe that there can be found in all this assemblage a single individual so dull or so prejudiced as not to see and admit its truth. But if there be any such, let him now rise and show himself. Let him deny, if he can, or dare to deny that every thousand dollars' worth of food exported to Europe will there purchase its equivalent thousand dollars' worth of foreign products in exchange, and that this return cargo will pay into our National Treasury, under the existing tariff, an average duty of at least thirty per cent, or three hundred dollars, and that, too, in gold. I pause, said Mr. R., for an answer. Does no one deny it? Can no one deny it? In discharging the official duty committed to me by my State, I have repeatedly propounded the same question, at Washington and elsewhere, to eminent legislators and statesmen, and have earnestly besought an answer, as I do now, and here, from you or any of you. I never yet found the man to deny the proposition. Some, it is true, seeking to evade its force, have stalked away, under the cry that the country was at war, and had no money but for war; that it really could not afford the means even to enrich itself—as if a period of war and lavish expenditure was not the very time and the very reason for replenishing, to the utmost, our wasting fiscal strength. As well might the farmer refuse to sow his land or reap for a crop because one of his sons had gone to the war. Political philosophers have also been found so deeply imbued with the abstractions of the Southern school, just now a little out of vogue, as to deny the constitutional authority of the nation, thus to fill the National Treasury, and reinvigorate the national strength; while others, again, in a spirit of mean and narrow sectionality, have thought it patriotic to excite local jealousies against the proposed highways for the national commerce, as tending to lessen the value of existing channels in other localities, and have especially sneered at the impiety of attempting to compete with the Mississippi as the stream specially designed for our internal trade by God himself. But, I repeat, not one of them has yet been found hardy enough to deny the simple fact that every thousand dollars exported in food will virtually bring back, directly or indirectly, another thousand dollars, on which three hundred dollars of duty will be paid to the nation in gold.

Fellow-citizens of the Convention, and gentlemen, I do not yet know what the Convention may do, but I know what it is in your power to do, if you will. Will you not, then, by the adoption of this resolution, give your voices in favor of such a power as will keep our treasury full to overflow? Will you not, by the adoption of this resolution, declare to the world, that the commercial and the political destiny of this unequaled portion of the earth, this its specially endowed and favored home by the Great Architect of Nations merits to rival the proud States of Lilliputia, great as it is, and large enough to make half a dozen Sicilies; or the still more petty State of New-York, with all its golden gates of commerce; or r

The price of Gold Coin varied but slightly on Saturday from the last figure of Friday afternoon. The closing quotation was 145@145¼ ▼ cent. Exchange on London 156 ▼ cent. There was an easy supply of Money to the Brokers at 6@7 ▼ cent., with more done at the lower rate than at any time during the week. A considerable sum was brought into the Street to pay for Harlem Common Stock—say $500,000 or $700,000. The receipts into the Treasury Office for the New Loan of 1862 amount to $1,506,250, of which $784,800 was through the Loan Agency and $721,450 on subscriptions direct at the Treasury. There was a large amount of Money transferred at the Treasury Office to the credit of the disbursing officers of the Government, and the actual payments outward were $1,250,000 in excess of the day's receipts. The export of Specie of all descriptions for the week is only $134,000.

The Stock Exchange was higher on the Share list generally than on Friday, and the additional rise on Harlem Common Stock 7@10 ▼ cent, the price finally closing on the Street at 104 ▼ cent. The early sales at the Board were at 95@96 ▼ cent. Some heavy private purchases were subsequently made to meet maturing deliveries at 99@100@105 ▼ cent. The next turn was to 102@100@98 ▼ cent., followed by a fresh demand at 102@103@104 ▼ cent. There was a large inquiry for Michigan Southern old shares, which went up to 74¼@75 ▼ cent. At 4 o'clock on the Street the following prices were made in comparison with Friday night:

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, June 27, 1863—6 P. M.

The receipts of the principal kinds of Produce since our last have been 63 bbls. Ashes, 26,170 bbls. Flour, 2,111 bbls. and 17 bags Corn Meal, 110,029 bushels Wheat, 112,217 bushels Corn, 6,509 bushels Rye, 34,736 bushels Oats, 4,398 pkgs. Provisions, and 1,177 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Sales 60 bbls. (including Pots, at 6¾, and Pearls at 6¾@7¾ ▼ lb. Stock in the Inspection Warehouse this morning, 826 bbls., including 536 bbls. Pots and 70 bbls. Pearls.

BARK—Sales of Peru, delivered, 50 hhds. No. 1 Guayaquil, at [illegible] ▼ ton.

BOOTS AND SHOES—The demand has been moderate for the leading descriptions of stock, and prices have been quoted steady. The Boston Commercial Bulletin of this morning says: "The trade in Boots and Shoes from first hands has lately set in apparently in good earnest, and if it holds out during the season as it has begun, there will be no cause of complaint on the score of a restricted market. The sales, however, thus far, have been principally to jobbers here and in New-York, whose stocks of seasonable goods were very light, and who generally preferred a temporary suspension of business to the risk of replenishing them during the last three months. They are now necessarily preparing for the Fall trade, which sets in early next month, though as yet there is but little demand for cassimmon either from the Western or New-England trade. Though prices of both stock and work rule high, manufacturers are operating to the full extent of their capacity, and there is some danger of an over-production, unless the extra war consumption shall prove an adequate safety-valve to the market."

COAL—Has been in good demand, and Anthracite has been quoted up to $8@$9 ▼ ton. The Philadelphia North American says: "The scarcity of labor in the interior and the prospect of a further advance in the rates of freight and toll on the 1st of the month, has given an upward tendency to the market, and the dealers are asking a further advance, with an active inquiry to go east and to supply the Government at fully former rates; most kinds of coal continue scarce."

COTTON—Has been a lively request, at buoyant prices. Middling Ords. 60c., chiefly 57c. ▼ lb. Sales and receipts, 3,100 bales.

FISH—Holders of Dry Cod and Pickled Mackerel have been asking a trifle higher prices, but transactions have been restricted. Herring have been abundant and depressed.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been less active to-day. The principal inquiry has been for fresh-ground Extra State and shipping brands of round-hoop Extra Ohio, prices of which have been quoted very firm. Other kinds have been in limited request, and quite heavy. Sales, since our last, 15,000 bbls., including superfine State and Western at $4 50@$5; poor to choice extra State at $5 20@$7, chiefly at $5 60@$5 80; round-hoop extra Ohio, shipping brands, at $5 60@$6 10 ▼ bbl.

Superfine State and Western	$4 50 @$5 00
Extra State	5 55 @ 6 00
Extra Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, &c.	5 60 @ 7 70
Extra Ohio, round-hoop, ship'g brds.	5 60 @ 6 10
Extra Ohio, trade brands	6 15 @ 7 75
Extra Genesee	6 15 @ 7 75
Inferior to Choice Extra Missouri	6 10 @ 9 00

Southern Flour is quiet, at former prices; sales since our last, 1,200 bbls., at $5 15@$5 95 for poor to superfine; $7@$8 40 for fancy to choice brands, and $5 50@$9 25 for very superior family brands, ▼ bbl. Canadian Flour is less buoyant; sales, 540 bbls. Extra, at $5 40@$7 50 ▼ bbl. Rye Flour is inactive, at $3 40@$5 25 for fine and superfine, ▼ bbl. Corn Meal continues in moderate request, at $4 10@$4 15 for Jersey, $4 for Allenale Mills, and $4 35 for Brandywine, ▼ bbl. Sales, 300 bbls.

GRAIN—Wheat has been rather sparingly offered, and has been quoted very firm, but the demand has not been active. Sales have been made of 104,000 bushels, including White Western at $1 65; Amber Western, $1 49@$1 56; Red Western, (Winter,) at $1 44@$1 49; Amber Iowa and Wisconsin at $1 41@$1 43; Milwaukee Club at $1 26@$1 41; Chicago Spring at $1 15@$1 35, and Amber State at $1 50 ▼ bushel. Corn is in good demand, but at rather easier prices; sales have been reported to-day of 117,000 bushels, at 77c.@75¾c., chiefly at 72c. for shipping mixed Western; 73½c.@74½c. for sound; 76c.@80c. for White, and 76c.@77c. for Yellow Western ▼ bushel. Rye continues in fair request, at 97c.@$1 05, according to quality, ▼ bushel. Sales, 6,700 bushels. Oats are in less request, including Canada, at 74c.@76c.; Western at 72c.@73c.; State at 77c.@78c. ▼ bushel. Barley and Barley Malt continue quiet and nominal.

HIDES—Receipts and sales have been fair during the week; prices have not varied materially. The week's receipts were 58,892 Hides; sales, 67,950 Hides, the latter including, according to Messrs. Wright, Sampson & Martin, 40,000 Buenos Ayres, 26½ lbs., 25½c.@25¾c., cash, usual selection; 1,500 Buenos Ayres Kips, 12½ lbs., 25½c., cash, usual selection; 3,000 Rio Grande, 21 lbs., 24½c., cash, usual selection; 3,500 Rio Grande Kips, 12 lbs., 25½c., cash, usual selection; 7,100 Orinoco, 21@22 lbs., 24½c., 6 mos., usual selection; 3,200 Matamoras, 23 lbs., on private terms; 2,900 Matamoras, Dry Salted, 23 lbs., on private terms; 850 Bogota, 16 lbs., 22c., cash, rejecting bad Hides; 1,300 Venezuela, 25 lbs., on private terms; 800 Wet Salted Tampico, 50 lbs., 12c., cash, as they run; 1,100 Country Slaughter, 60@70 lbs., on private terms; 2,000 City Slaughter, 60@75 lbs., 9½c.@10c., cash, rejecting bad Hides. Stock in importers' and speculators' hands: 414,100 Dry Hides, 4,500 Wet Salted Hides, and 100 bales East India Hides. The stock includes 15,500 will Europe, 206,000 Buenos Ayres, Montevideo, &c.; 62,000 Rio Grande, 43,000 California, &c.; 14,000 Orinoco, 1,000 Porto Cabello, and 1,000 Maracaibo, 4,000 Chili and Peruvian, 3,900 Minas, 17,000 Asuncion and San Juan, 600 Tampico and Matamoras, 10,000 Savanilla and Rogota, 9,500 Maranham and Para, 13,000 Bahia and Pernambuco, 2,000 West Indies, 2,000 East Indies, &c.; 100 bales Calcutta Cow and Buffalo, 1,200 Wet Salted California, 1,700 Wet Salted Rio Grande, 1,600 Wet Salted Buenos Ayres.

HAY—North River bale has been in good demand to-day, at 85c.@90c. ▼ 100 lbs.

HOPS—Continue in fair demand, at 15c.@22c. ▼ lb.

IRON—Has been quiet but steady, in this market. In Philadelphia during the week, business has been dull and prices unchanged.

LEAD—Sales in Philadelphia, 2,500 pigs Galena, at $6 50 ▼ 100 lbs.

MOLASSES—Sales, to-day, 370 bbls. New-Orleans at 39c.@48c.; 220 hhds. Porto Rico at 49c.@53c., and 104 hhds. Cuba Muscovado at 42c.@45c. ▼ gallon.

OILS—Petroleum was in very brisk request to-day, and sales of 17,000 bbls. were reported at 22c.@22½c. for Crude; 50c.@60c. for Refined, in bond, chiefly for future delivery, up to the close of October; and 62c.@65c. for do. do., free, on the spot, ▼ gallon. Nothing really new in other kinds.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been in moderate request at about former rates. Sales since our last, 1,100 bbls., in lots, at $11 50@$12 75 for Old Mess; $12 87½@$13 12½, chiefly at $13, for new Mess, and $13 50@$13 75 for old and new Prime, ▼ bbl. Cut Meats are in demand, at 7c.@8¼c. for Hams, and 4¾c.@5c. for Shoulders, ▼ lb. Bacon continues quiet, at 5¾c.@7½c. ▼ lb.; sales, 165 boxes. Lard is rather heavy to-day; sales 2,100 tcs. and bbls. at 8¾c.@10½c. ▼ lb. Beef is inactive; sales 230 bbls., at $12 50@$14 for extra Mess, and $9 50@$11 75 for Plain Mess, ▼ bbl.; Prime Mess, $20@$22 ▼ tierce. Beef Hams, $18@$17 ▼ bbl. Butter continues in moderate demand, at 15c.@19c. for poor to choice Western, and 17c.@23c. for common to choice State ▼ lb. Cheese is salable at 6c.@13c. ▼ lb.

SKINS—Are held above the views of buyers, and are inactive; 20,000 Matamoras Goat arrived during the week.

SUGARS—Sales, to-day, amounted to 3,200 hhds., including New-Orleans (part clarified,) at 12¾c.@13¼c.; Porto Rico at 11¾c.@11¾c., and Cuba at 10¼c.@11¼c. Market quite buoyant.

TALLOW—Sales, 120,000 lbs. at 11c.@11¼c.; and 19,000 lbs. Grease at 3c.@3½c. ▼ lb.

WHISKY—Sales, 460 bbls. at 44½c.@45c. ▼ gallon.

WOOL—Has been quite active, and quoted much firmer during the past week. The demand has been animated, both for manufacturing and on speculation. Stocks have been materially reduced. The week's sales include 225,000 lbs. Domestic Fleece at 57½c.@60c.; chiefly at 59c.@75c.; 3,000 lbs. new clip do. do. at 70c.; 5,000 lbs. Domestic Pulled at 65c.@70c.; 35,000 lbs. California at 48c.@55c.; 1,700 bales Mestiza at 24c.@32c.; 1,500 bales Cape at 32c.@37½c., and 400 bales Donskoi and other Foreign, in lots, on private terms. The Boston Commercial Bulletin of this morning, says: "The sales of domestic for the week, as we before observed, foot up some 300,000 lbs. at a range of 70c.@60c. for fleece, the former figure for New-York, and the latter for choice Ohio and Pennsylvania, which is scarce. The supply of pulled is also very low, with small sales, at 70c.@75c. for outside figure for Billings' Extra, which is an advance of 5c. from last week's rate. 40,000 lb. California sold at about 45c., cash. Foreign Wools are very dull in view of the forthcoming large supply of domestic, and the reduced rates of exchange. At present there is no demand for army grades, and transactions foot up only 500 bales, including Mediterranean, South American and Cape, at about previous rates, the last named description mostly at 41c., cash. In Philadelphia a few small sales of domestic, chiefly old fleece, have been made at 58c.@72c. ▼ lb.

FREIGHTS—Have been quiet and rates somewhat unsettled to-day. For Liverpool, the engagements included 100 bales Sea Island Cotton, by steamer, at 5¾d. ▼ lb.; 1,300 bbls. Flour, at 1s. 6d.@1s. 9d. ▼ bbl.; 35,000 bushels Grain, at 6¾d.@7d. ▼ bushel; 2,000 packages Provisions, by steamer, at 35s.@45s. ▼ ton. For London, 4,000 bbls. Flour, at 2s. 4½d.@2s. 11d. ▼ bbl. For Cork and orders, 35,000 bushels Grain, part at 7s. 9d. ▼ quarter and part at 8d. ▼ bushel. For Havre, 20,000 bushels Grain, in bulk and bags, at 18c.@20c. ▼ bushel. For Antwerp, 15,000 bbls. Flour, at 2s. @2s. 2d. ▼ bbl.; 1,500 bushels Wheat, in ship's bags, at 11½d. ▼ bushel, and 125 tons heavy goods, at 35s. ▼ ton. For Rotterdam, 6,000 bbls. Flour, at 3s. ▼ bbl. The latest charters, according to the Shipping List, have been: "A Br. brig, 280 tons, to Rotterdam, Petroleum, 8s. 6d.; a Br. bark, same voyage, 1,300 bbls. Petroleum, 7s. 3d.; a Prussian brig, 248 tons, to Antwerp, 15,000 Wheat, 10d., in bulk; a Br. bark, 348 tons, to Marseilles, 30c. W. S., for Heavy Goods, and 5 ▼ cent. primage, half in Gold, and back to New-York, $1,750; a brig, 150 tons, to Gulf Mexico and back, $3,000, half in Gold; a Br. schr., 123 tons, and a Br. brig, 94 tons, to Martinique, $1 10 ▼ bbl., in Gold; a Br. brig, 115 tons, to the Windward, $1 ▼ bbl.; same 190 tons, from an Eastern port to the Windward, Lumber, $12 in Gold; a Br. bark, 400 tons to Cardenas, $3,000 in Gold; a Br. brig, 213 tons, to Barbados, $1,250; one, 170 tons, to Barbados and back, $2,000, half Gold; an Italian ship to a port in the United Kingdom, 26,000 Wheat, and ship Wm. Chamberlain, 950 tons, to San Francisco, on private terms.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

A report that Gen. HOOKER has been relieved of the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. MEADE appointed in his place, comes to us through our Special Washington Correspondent.

An authorized dispatch from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, published yesterday, announced that the Army was in motion, and would soon be to the front and north of Baltimore. We are enabled further to say that the entire army is on the north side of the Potomac, and will soon be heard from by the public. The locations of the various corps, so far as they are known to us, it would be improper to disclose. The whole rebel army is also on the north side of the Potomac, but it is very much scattered. The last corps, under A. P. HILL, crossed at Williamsport on Friday, and was on Saturday at Hagerstown. LONGSTREET's corps has also passed through Hagerstown. Gen. LEE himself is said to have been at Hagerstown on Friday. The rebels recently on South Mountain and at Boonsboro, Md., appear to have left those localities, and to be concentrating at Sharpsburgh. Rebel wagon trains loaded with grain, plundered from the farmers of Pennsylvania, have begun to return by way of Smithsburgh and Hagerstown. Large droves of cattle, sheep, hogs and horses are also being driven in the same direction. A dispatch from Baltimore, published yesterday, announced that the rebels were at Glen Rock, on the Northern Central Railroad, forty-three miles from Baltimore, tearing up the track there, but a dispatch received last evening states that the telegraph was working to Glen Rock. The rebels were, however, at Hanover Junction, six miles beyond, at work destroying the railroad, and it is known that they have also been operating at York, some twenty miles beyond.

The rebel column advancing on Harrisburgh occupied Carlisle about 10 o'clock on Saturday evening, our forces retiring. The rebels continued to advance cautiously, and yesterday made their appearance before the fortifications on the other side of the river, throwing a number of shell during the afternoon. At 6 o'clock the rebels were within three miles of the fortifications. At 8 o'clock the bridge on the Susquehanna, at Columbia, was in flames, having been destroyed to prevent the crossing of the rebels there. There had been no general engagement at last accounts.

The rebel force which was advancing westward from the Cumberland Valley road, and had reached McConnellsburgh, are reported to have evacuated that place and to have retreated eastward toward Chambersburgh again. The telegraph operator returned to McConnellsburgh on Friday evening. The rebel force which was there consisted of 1,500 mounted infantry, with a section of artillery.

A squadron of Scurr's 900 cavalry, on Saturday morning, had an encounter with the rebels near Fairfax, fell into an ambuscade, and were very badly cut up. Eighty men are reported killed, wounded or missing.

The rebel cavalry under FITZHUGH LEE, on Saturday, made a dash into Annandale, and captured a number of sutlers and some Government property.

Gen. DIX telegraphs to the War Department from Fortress Monroe, under date of yesterday, that an expedition under Col. SPEAR, of the Eleventh Pennsylvania cavalry, sent out two days previously, had returned, having met with much success. Col. SPEAR completely destroyed the bridge over the South Anna River, captured Gen. W. F. LEE, Col. HEARSEABLE, with a number of other officers, and 100 privates, 55 wagons with 6 mules each, and 150 mules in addition, and from 75 to 100 horses, besides $15,000 in Confederate bonds, just issued—all public property. Col. SPEAR lost but three men killed and eight wounded.

Refugees from Richmond represent that there is quite a panic there in apprehension of an attack. Many of the citizens are leaving for Staunton.

Important news will soon reach us from Gen. ROSECRANS' army, which was put in motion against the enemy on Wednesday morning last, with twelve days' provisions. Gen. McCOOK has the right, Gen. THOMAS the centre, and Gen. CRITTENDEN the left. The columns moved by different roads, but converging on the enemy's position along the Duck River. It was thought probable that BRAGG would abandon this position and fall back on Chattanooga, but if he was forced to battle we should hear of it within a day or two—perhaps to-day.

A somewhat startling event has just occurred in the harbor of Portland. On Friday night the schooner Archer, recently captured by the pirate Tacony, entered the harbor with twenty-one men from the Tacony on board, the intention being to burn two gunboats building there, and to cut out the revenue-cutter Caleb Cushing and steamer Forest City. The character of the craft, or rather of her crew, was not suspected, as she was similar to numbers of schooners constantly passing in and out of the harbor. Finding they could not accomplish all they desired, the pirates contented themselves with quietly taking possession of the cutter Caleb Cushing—she having only a portion of her crew on board, who were put in irons—and putting to sea during the night. As soon as her absence was discovered, prompt measures were taken to overtake her. Two packet steamers—the Forest City and the Chesapeake—were immediately armed and otherwise suitably fitted out, and started in pursuit. They succeeded in overhauling the cutter before she got out of sight of the city, and, after an exchange of shots, prepared to board her. The rebel captors, seeing the intention of their pursuers, abandoned her, after setting her on fire, and she subsequently blew up. The rebels took refuge on the schooner in which they had entered the harbor, and attempted to escape in her, but did not succeed. They were soon captured, and are now in durance in Fort Rebel. The original crew of the cutter were all saved, they having been put adrift by the rebels in a small boat before the Cushing was abandoned. The log-book of Lieut. HUNT, who commanded the rebels, indicates that the Tacony has been destroyed.

Forty sail of vessels are reported to have been destroyed, by a pirate steamer, off Cape Sable, on Thursday and Friday. A Brunswick ship was also captured, but bonded, and her crew of the other vessels were put ashore [illegible]

At Sag Harbor, on Saturday, heavy firing was heard in a southeasterly direction, apparently some miles out to sea.

By the steamer George Cromwell, which arrived at this port yesterday, we have advices from New-Orleans to the 21st inst., and our correspondence from Port Hudson to the 15th, giving details of the second assault on the enemy's works, made on the 14th. The assault, though not accomplishing all that was desired, resulted in the gaining of new positions by our forces, nearer the rebel works, which would be of much value in the third assault, which was expected soon to be made. A general order, issued by Gen. BANKS on the 15th, called for a storming party of a thousand men, and they were immediately forthcoming. When this third assault was to take place is not stated. Our correspondent sends us an official list of the casualties on the 14th. Gen. SHERMAN's condition is much improved since his leg was amputated. No doubt is now entertained of his recovery. A rebel cavalry force, numbering about 300, had made a dash into Plaquemine, and seized and burned four steamers and a barge, together with 75 bales of cotton. About 50 convalescent soldiers were captured and paroled.

An important order from the War Department, relative to the recruiting of veteran volunteers, will be found in our columns this morning.

GENERAL NEWS.

The remains of the late Rear-Admiral FOOTE, were on Saturday conveyed to Hartford, Conn. where a public funeral will take place on Monday. The body was escorted from the Astor House to the Hartford boat by a large number of naval officers, preceded by two companies of marines and a band from the Brooklyn Navy-yard.

A call has been issued and signed by Horace Maynard, W. G. Brownlow, Geo. F. Stubblefield, Manson M. Brien, Horace H. Harrison, Ed. H. East, E. R. Glascock, Geo. W. Bridges, John S. Brien and W. Spence, for a State Convention, to be held in Nashville on the 1st of July, to take into consideration the measures necessary to reorganize the State of Tennessee, and prepare such measures as are necessary to secure a Representative in the next Congress.

There was a further rise of 7@10 ⅌ cent. in Harlem Shares on the Stock Exchange on Saturday. Other Stocks were also firm at the close of the day, under an improved confidence in the Money Market. Gold, 145¾; Exchange, 158 ⅌ cent. The sales of United States Stock of 1863 amounted to $1,504,250.

Breadstuffs were in less demand on Saturday. Flour and Corn were generally depressed. Wheat was steady. Rye and Oats were rather buoyant. Provisions attracted less attention. New Mess Pork was firmer. Lard somewhat cheaper. The main business in groceries was in Sugars and Molasses, of which free sales were effected at rising prices. Cotton was brisker and dearer. Very large sales of Petroleum were reported, chiefly to speculators and for future delivery, at decidedly firmer rates. Rosin was quoted higher, with light sales. Engagements of freight were restricted, with 634 vessels of all classes in port. The changes in other articles were unimportant.

Strategy of the Campaign.

The old familiar disputes as to which General is getting the better of the other in strategy are beginning to rage again, and they are just as vain now as ever they were. It would save the public a great deal of useless vexing of the brain, if they would remember that it is not possible and will not be possible to decide whether LEE has outwitted HOOKER or HOOKER LEE, until the campaign is over. The operations in war can only be judged of by their results, which accounts for the fact that for the one strategical writer who is able to foretell how a battle or a series of maneuvres will end, there are a hundred who know how they would end after they are over. When the victory is won, we all know why it was won, and are astonished by the imbecility of the vanquished; but the number of us who can warn the vanquished of his impending fate is exceedingly small, and if were much to be wished that the number of those who occasionally undertake that task were still smaller. Whether HOOKER committed a grave error in letting LEE reach the Potomac without attacking him, we shall be better able to judge when we see in what position the rebel force will be a month hence. We have had in the course of the war abundant demonstration of the truth that the object of war is not to fight battles, but to destroy armies, or render them incapable of continuing their resistance. So that if LEE's arrival in Maryland should prove instrumental, let it be ever so slightly, in bringing about his final and complete overthrow, it will matter little whether he got there through HOOKER's neglect or through his design.

The same thing may be said about this invasion of Pennsylvania. It is not always possible for the largest and best led armies to prevent the enemy entering on any portion of their territory. In fact, it is often sound policy not to oppose it, when the opposition involves the covering of a too long or disadvantageous line. What gave NAPOLEON his greatest advantage over the Austrians, and led to most of the military defeats which they suffered at his hand, was that they invariably attempted to be ready for him at every point of their territory.

Invasion is no doubt a very disagreeable and very humiliating thing. It causes great loss and great suffering to the inhabitants of the districts which happen to be the victims of it; but it is not half as grievous a calamity as the indefinite prolongation of the war. Much as the people of Pennsylvania will lose by the presence of LEE's army, their loss will be but a trifle compared to that inflicted on the whole nation by even three months of hostilities conducted on the enemy's soil. So that if their advent on this side of the Potomac tends in any degree to expose them to a decisive reverse, it will not only be good strategy but as close an approach to justice or fairness as the nature of war will admit of, to have let them come. It is not possible in war to distribute the cost of suffering in exactly equal proportions over the whole country. Some must always lay down their lives or lose their relatives, while others only submit to a little increased taxation. No arrangement is possible by which we can all of us be made to shed a little blood and a few tears, and nobody be killed or lose son or brother. So also none must be exposed to the enemy's presence in their houses and stables and barns, while others only read of his movements in the newspapers. So long as there are such things as enemies and frontiers, the people that live near the frontier will be exposed, whenever war breaks out, to plunder and violence; and it is really mere childishness to suppose that this can always be prevented by a government by any amount of precaution whatever. It would be a most desirable thing if it could be so arranged that no one should ever live near places where war is raging, and that marches and countermarches should always be made in regions where there was nothing to rob, and nobody to be robbed; but the military art has not yet attained to such perfection as to make this possible.

We do not mean by all this to fascinate that the Pennsylvanians have no reason to complain of the Government in not having given them earlier warning to prepare themselves for the blow which is now descending on them. Very probably they have been badly treated. But it is, nevertheless, not at all likely that any amount of preparation on their part would have entirely warded it off. It would have simply enabled them to meet and repel more promptly. But it would be mischievous in the highest degree, just now, to have the notion get afloat that they are fully wronged by the mere fact that the enemy is on their soil. He is on our soil—on the soil of the Union; the mortification and insult of his presence is and ought to be just as great for a New-Yorker as for a Pennsylvanian. If the latter suffer more material loss by it than we do, it is due to "the nature of things," and there is no use and no sense in grousing over it.

Removal of Gen. Hooker—Appointment of Gen. Meade.

The country will be astounded by the news from Washington this morning that Gen. HOOKER has been relieved from the command of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. MEADE appointed as his successor. We have had no hint that a change was anticipated, and probably it has not been anticipated long. No reasons for the change are given; but it is doubtless owing to the fact that the Government has at last come to entertain the feeling so widely prevalent in the country, of a want of that perfect confidence in Gen. HOOKER, which is so essential at a crisis like this. During the recent and present movements of the rebel army against Washington, the manœuvres of Gen. HOOKER were, to a great extent, incomprehensible to the general public; but we had daily assurances from Washington that our army was being so handled and planted as to insure the circumvention of LEE in his designs. Those of us who knew what HOOKER's movements had been for the past fortnight, found in them some things that were admirable and others that were inexplicable. But we could only wait patiently for results, devoutly hoping that those who had the Government of the country and the ordering of the army in their hands, and who were thoroughly informed concerning much that was dark to mere observers, were working for the public salvation to the best of their knowledge and ability. If so it be that Gen. HOOKER has been removed for good cause, the country will cheerfully acquiesce in the removal.

We have, to the best of our ability, sustained Gen. HOOKER in his efforts as commander of the Army of the Potomac from the day he took command until now. We know the necessity of upholding the confidence of the people, and of the army in its leader, as long as he is retained in that position. Whenever we have not been able to applaud, we have remained silent, publishing only the news of events and the details of movements and actions, and permitting every intelligent man to form his own conclusions.

It is just five months since Gen. HOOKER assumed command of the Army of the Potomac, as successor of Gen. BURNSIDE. The one great event of these five months was the battle of Chancellorsville—as the one great event of BURNSIDE's brief administration was the battle of Fredericksburgh. Like BURNSIDE, Gen. HOOKER had approved himself an able and successful commander in a subordinate position; but, like him, he failed to command victory in the supreme trial. Gen. HOOKER proved himself efficient in all the secondary duties of his position; and it was only the other day we had occasion to point out his great services in imparting celerity of movement to the army, in organizing and using its cavalry, and in effecting various valuable reforms. His recent march from Falmouth (we may now say) to this side of the Potomac, was also generally spoken of as conducted with very marked ability, as it certainly was with notable celerity.

Gen. MEADE, his successor, is already pretty well known to the country as a corps commander in the Army of the Potomac. He has not figured quite as prominently as some others, though his corps (the Fifth army corps) is second in discipline and condition to none in the army, and wherever it has been on duty, has been handled with a skill second to none. It did not actively participate in the late battle of Chancellorsville—the First and Fifth corps having been held as reserves. The confidence of all the corps commanders and of all the officers of the army in Gen. MEADE is very high; and we may now state that after the late battle of Chancellorsville his appointment to supersede Gen. HOOKER was urged by every corps commander, with, perhaps, one exception. There is no doubt he will be loyally and warmly supported by the officers of the army, as he was certainly the one whom they generally designated as their first choice. The officer next in rank to Gen. HOOKER was himself desirous that Gen. MEADE should be his chief. His intellectual characteristics are sagacity, decision and firmness, with, of course, all the other soldierly qualifications, and he has also education and experience.

Gen. MEADE was born in Spain, while his parents were residing there. He entered West Point as a cadet from the District of Columbia in September, 1831, and after graduation was attached to the Third Artillery as Second Lieutenant. He afterwards served in the Topographical Engineers, and figured creditably, like nearly all our other officers, in the Mexican war. At the beginning of this war he was a Captain in the service, and from that position he bounded at once to the rank of Brigadier-General, and subsequently, for his ability, received the appointment of Major-General.

Gen. MEADE takes command of the army at a very critical moment, and while it is placed in a critical position. As already indicated, the main body is on this side of the river, and north of Washington, but we cannot give any further details. The whole country will unite in devoutly hoping for him the greatest success. And we earnestly trust that, after so many changes, we have at last, in this hour, fallen upon an officer capable of leading the nation and its gallant army to victory.

Advance of Gen. Rosecrans.

We give this morning, from our own correspondent, news of the advance of Gen. ROSECRANS, last week. It is supposed the rebels will take up a defensive position on the line of the Duck River, which our army would be ready to assault in the early part of this week. Another theory, and a more plausible one, is, that BRAGG will fall back to Chattanooga, where it would be difficult for us to attack him. ROSECRANS has heretofore been a word of victory, and we trust it will prove so now. All our armies are now in motion, if not in action.

The Battle at Port Hudson.

We have from our correspondent a vivid account of the second great assault on the rebel works at Port Hudson, which took place on the 14th—two weeks ago yesterday. We are enabled also to relieve a wide-spread public anxiety, by publishing a list of the killed and wounded, which is in great part official.

The attack was very desperately contested, heroic and sanguinary; and Gen. BANKS showed on this occasion his usual skill and gallantry. But, unfortunately, it failed of perfect success, though important results were achieved, and Gen. BANKS is making preparations for another assault. "We are at all points," says he, "upon the threshold of his fortifications. One more advance and they are ours!"

As at Vicksburgh, we have no doubt that the final result at Port Hudson will be perfect victory. Our brave army down there is struggling grandly, and receiving, as they deserve, the admiration of the whole country.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN COMMERCE.—Though the late Canal Convention at Chicago failed to forward the object for which it was called, in as great a degree as had been expected, it yet did good in bringing before the country some vital facts regarding the growth and prospects of American products and American commerce, and the consequent necessities of greater and better courses and means of transit between the West and the East. By far the clearest, and at the same time most popular exposition of these facts was contained in the admirable speech of Mr. S. B. RUGGLES, of this City, of which we publish a report this morning.

The speech well deserves reading as a whole, and we need not here either recapitulate or discuss the arguments put forth. The recent gigantic increase in our export of food, which is now the substratum of American commerce, is shown to be but the beginning of the growth to which it must attain. It is this which now sustains the country, the Government and the war. Time was when Southern cotton contributed largely to the work of filling the Treasury; but that day has passed, and food now takes the place of cotton, our foreign exports consisting almost exclusively of food or its direct product; and, says Mr. RUGGLES, every thousand dollars exported in food will virtually bring back, directly or indirectly, another thousand dollars, on which three hundred dollars of duty will be paid to the nation in gold. Last year, New-York sent to Europe fifty million bushels of cereals in grain, which purchased at least fifty million dollars' worth of foreign merchandise, which gave the National Treasury fifteen millions of dollars. Beside all this, we send to Europe the Western hog—the hog which is but "corn incarnate"—in rapidly and enormously growing volume. In 1859 we only exported of pork nine millions of pounds; but owing to the new method of packing and other causes, we sent one hundred and thirty millions of pounds last year, which this year will probably be increased to three hundred millions—which is "equivalent to an army of a million and a half of hogs marching across the ocean" to be devoured. So corn is traced through its animal forms, and onward and upward to its "spiritualized condition" in whisky, and in every shape it is the source of power and wealth.

These results are capable of indefinite expansion, and it is from this large view of the case that the extension of our canal system is urged, as the want of means of transit is now the only barrier to growth. Mr. RUGGLES says that the cost of all the works for which he asks will not exceed fifty millions—the yearly interest on which would be but $1,500,000—whereas every $10,000,000 added to our agricultural exports will yearly yield in return duties $3,000,000, fully meeting the interest, and amply providing a fund for rapidly refunding the principal.

The whole subject is worthy of more attention, study and thought than has yet been given to it by the people of the Eastern States.

ENERGY AND REFORM.—The Washington correspondent of an enterprising morning cotemporary, telegraphed yesterday, as follows:

"It is rumored here that Secretary WELLES is about sending a circular to the Commanders-in-Chief of the different squadrons, directing them to report to him from time to time the speed made by the steamers of their fleets, with a view to detach for expedition service, if necessary, the fastest among them. Information has been received here that the Nyanza, a new vessel recently sent on service, can steam sixteen miles an hour. Mr. FOX is said, also, to favor the plan of having some knowledge laid before the Department of the speed of our vessels."

It did not require that our cotemporary should head this dispatch, "Important Naval Movement," to establish the fact of its extreme importance, for any one can see at a glance the tremendous reform that such a rule would work. It is devoutly to be hoped that this promise of reform rests on a surer foundation than mere "rumor," and that the "circular" which is to mark a new era in the history of our navy, will certainly be printed and issued.

Would it not be well, in view of the far-reaching scope of the proposed new order, to establish a distinct bureau for its enforcement? Then the utmost simplicity and directness would be achieved; and on hearing that sixteen or any other number of our merchant ships had been burnt or bonded near the Bahamas, the authorities would not be obliged to resort to the circumlocution of ordering Admiral WILKES to send his "fastest vessel." In pursuit, (an order that might fairly be misunderstood to mean the one-gun screw tub Dead-Slow,) but could say at once to the Admiral the identical vessel he should send in chase. If the specific vessel ordered to go in pursuit should at the time be disabled in cylinder, crank, or cut-off, this would be unfortunate, but there would remain the most obvious excuse for the pirate's escape.

If the Secretary of the Navy has not already resolved to convert rumor into fact, in this very important matter, we sincerely trust that Mr. FOX's favor of having "some knowledge" in the department of the speed and efficiency of our war vessels, will carry the point affirmatively. We shall await with deep anxiety the result of the cogitations on this Important Naval Movement, of which our enterprising cotemporary should not allow the country to remain in ignorance.

Rebel Treatment of Negro Soldiers and Free Negroes—The Law in the Case.

The rebels have repeatedly of late hung, and otherwise put to death in the most barbarous manner, such negro soldiers of the Union army as they have taken prisoner in battle. The details of their massacre, in cold blood, of 200 negroes at Franklin, La., and of others at Milliken's Bend, and again, at Port Hudson, have been published in our columns. To this crime, they have, within the past fortnight, added the atrocity of seizing and carrying into Slavery a large number of free-born black men, women and children from Pennsylvania. To these matters, in their military aspect, and legally viewed, we have already called attention. We now add, for the information of our military officers, and to refresh the memory of the Government, the special law applicable to the case, adopted by our own authorities.

The code containing Instructions for the Government of the Armies of the United States in the Field, and which was issued by the President as Commander-in-Chief, as General Order No. 100, April 24, 1863, has clearly provided for the exigency which has now arisen. This code, as our readers are aware, was drawn up by the distinguished publicist and scholar, FRANCIS LIEBER, LL.D., and as it is now law, there is no doubt that the President is bound to see to its enforcement, and our Generals to its execution.

The special paragraphs to which we call attention are these:

56. A prisoner of war is subject to no punishment for being a public enemy, nor is any revenge wreaked upon him by the intentional infliction of any suffering, or disgrace, by cruel imprisonment, want of food, by mutilation, death, or any other barbarity.

57. So soon as a man is armed by a sovereign Government, and takes the soldier's oath of fidelity, he is a belligerent; his killing, wounding, or other warlike acts are no individual crimes or offences. No belligerent has a right to declare that enemies of a certain class, color, or condition, when properly organized as soldiers, will not be treated by him as public enemies.

58. The law of nations knows of no distinction of color, and if an enemy of the United States should enslave and sell any captured persons of their army, it would be a case for the severest retaliation, if not redressed upon complaint.

The United States cannot retaliate by enslavement; therefore death must be the retaliation for this crime against the law of nations.

In a previous paragraph, the code (the first of the kind, by the way, that has been used in any country) speaks of retaliation thus:

27. The law of war can no more wholly dispense with retaliation than can the law of nations, of which it is a branch. Yet civilized nations acknowledge retaliation as the severest feature of war. A reckless enemy often leaves to his opponent no other means of securing himself against the repetition of barbarous outrage.

Dr. LIEBER'S military code, or rather the National Military Code, is simply a digest of the laws of war that prevail among, and are enforced by, civilized nations. It is a most admirable digest—concise, clear and just—and if it was, as it certainly should be, rigidly and universally enforced, in all its details, during the war, it would at once simplify and settle many of the most embarrassing military questions.

The Missouri State Convention.

JEFFERSON CITY, Saturday, June 27.

A motion by Mr. HENDERSON, to reconsider the vote of yesterday, by which it was agreed to submit the ordinance of emancipation to the people, was carried, 66 to 21.

The question then recurring on adopting the report of the Committee, Mr. DRAKE moved to amend by substituting 1866 as the date of emancipation, instead of 1876.

Gov. GAMBLE moved to amend by striking out the second section of the ordinance and substituting the following: "Slavery shall cease to exist in Missouri on the 4th of July, 1876; but all slaves, emancipated by this ordinance, shall remain under control and be subject to the authority of their owners, as servants, during the following periods: Those from and over 40 years of age, during their lives; those under 12 until they arrive at 23; those of all other ages until the 4th of July, 1876."

Mr. DRAKE then moved to amend his amendment, but still adhering to 1866 instead of 1876 as the date of emancipation, to which Gov. GAMBLE assented.

Mr. HENDERSON moved to strike out Mr. DRAKE's amendment the words 1866 and insert 1868, which was carried—ayes 51, nays 32. The amendments were ordered to be printed. Adjourned.

THE WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

The Rebel Gen. Price Said to be at Island No. 37.

HEAVY CANNONADING AT VICKSBURGH.

CAIRO, Sunday, June 27.

A member of Gen. ASHORN's Staff, from Columbus, reports Gen. PRICE with six thousand rebels in the vicinity of Island No. 37. It is rebling is preparing rafts to cross the Mississippi, his object being to cooperate with the rebel force in the vicinity of Memphis. Another report says he will occupy Island No. 24, and intercept navigation. Capt. PARSONS, of the Navy, is alert and will entrap PRICE.

The latest dates from Vicksburgh are to the evening of the 21st. The cannonading on the 20th and 21st, reported yesterday, is confirmed, but there are no particulars.

The steamer Lioness, from Cincinnati to Yazoo Landing, sank near Hurricane Island, in the Ohio River, on Thursday, with ammunition and Government stores, most of which were lost. An ammunition barge in tow was saved.

THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURGH.

Progress of our Approach—Our Works very near the Rebels—The Loss of Life Light—Our Reinforcements—Preparations for the Reception of Joe. Johnston—The Fight at Richmond, La., &c., &c.

From OUR OWN Correspondent.

YAZOO, Thursday, June 18, 1863.

The siege still progresses in most respects as it has heretofore. Gen. SHERMAN has his approaches so near that his men can use hand-grenades, throwing them up over the high parapets of the enemy. McPHERSON has made an equal advance. McCLERNAND has not advanced so far.

New vigor has been displayed by the rebels during the last four days; whether from the desperation which a steadily and surely approaching fate begets, or from some encouraging information of promised relief, we cannot know. They have made several savage night attacks upon our working parties and pickets, without success, however. Within three days past they have given a heavy fire of musketry and artillery, by day and night, throwing shell of various calibre along their whole line. Among these missiles are 11-inch shells, thrown from an 11-inch mortar which the navy, under Commodore DAVIS, lost a year since during the bombardment. Our loss of life and limb has been very slight, though we lose men every day, principally from sharpshooters. This increased fire of the enemy is replied to with spirit along our whole line, the artillery of which has been very much increased. I think the fire during the evening of the 16th was the heaviest of the siege.

A number of naval batteries have been erected at different positions along the line. In fact, work has so far progressed that in a few days the army can await, with very little labor or danger, any order that the Generals may make, whether it be to assault the formidable works, or stand patiently by their guns until starvation and disease compel a surrender.

So much for our front line. Our rear line, or rather the line which is intended to receive JOHNSTON, should he endeavor to raise the siege, is believed, by those who have knowledge of the positions which it occupies, and the character and strength of its works, to be entirely sufficient. A description of it would be improper at this time. So much confidence is felt by our commanding officers, in their ability to defeat JOHNSTON, that I have no doubt that they will wait a reasonable length of time for the rebel General to collect his army and attack.

With regard to the strength of the reinforcements which have arrived since the investment, it is not proper to state their numbers. This much is not improper, however—the old army has been very much increased. Generals PARKER, HERRON, KENRICK, WASHBURNE and LAUMAN are among the officers now here who had no hand in reaching the rear of Vicksburgh, but will have in defending said rear.

With the commanding officers there is a difference of opinion with reference to JOHNSTON's intention—some believing that public opinion and a regard for his own reputation as a military leader will compel him to make an attempt to relieve Vicksburgh; others holding that JOHNSTON is too good an officer to venture an attack upon our present position. The enemy has been found at different points along our whole line, from Haines' Bluff to Hall's Ferry. Skirmishes take place daily between our cavalry and the cavalry and mounted infantry of the enemy in front of Haines' Bluff. WIRT ADAMS' cavalry were engaged on the 16th at Bear Creek, seven miles from our left. At the Big Black Railroad crossing, OSTERHAUS has had several skirmishes with the Second Kentucky and Twentieth Mississippi. On the Hall's Ferry road there have been several large bodies of troops, but there were none on this side day before yesterday. In the skirmishes and scouts of our cavalry casualties occur every day. Men are wounded, prisoners taken, but nothing so far of any great moment has occurred. On the 14th, Col. MUZE, of the Second Illinois cavalry, while scouting near Big Black, was fired upon and severely wounded in the head and shoulder.

On the 15th Gen. MOWER, with his brigade and battery B, Chicago Light Artillery, moved from Sherman's Landing upon the rebels under WALKER at Richmond; the same force under McCULLOCH, which attacked Milliken's Bend, being with WALKER. Before reaching the Tensas the enemy's pickets were driven in with a slight loss. Crossing the bayou, which is not fordable, they destroyed the bridge. Our artillery opened upon them, but before a bridge could be constructed the rebel army of two divisions retreated along the Tensas toward Black River. A detachment of cavalry swam their horses across the bayou, and surprised them, taking 40 prisoners. The force was too small for a long pursuit, and the delay in crossing so great that the cavalry could not be supported. The pursuit was abandoned. Richmond and all the houses and buildings in the country between it and Young's Point, were burned.

The same day some 2,000 rebels attempted an attack upon the Federal forces at Lake Providence. Gen. REED, in command at that Post, with the First Kansas, Sixteenth Wisconsin, and some negro troops, with his whole command, moved out some three miles to meet the rebels. He found them in an open field across the bayou, the bridge over which he had previously destroyed. The rebels had one six-pounder gun, with which they opened on REED's men. Unable to cross the bayou, he advanced his skirmishers to its bank, and firing across, killed and wounded all the gunners. The whole line at the same time advanced. After a few volleys, the rebels retreated in confusion, dragging their gun. So ended this attack. The rebel army which made these attacks at Young's Point, Milliken's Bend and Lake Providence, is under the command of DICK TAYLOR, son of President TAYLOR, and consists of three divisions under Gens. WALKER, McCULLOCH and ANDERSON. It has made a severe forced march from Texas, for the purpose of cutting our line of supplies at some point on the Mississippi. So far, it has been entirely unsuccessful. The Choctaw has not been sunk, as stated in a late dispatch.

Ohio Raising Troops Rapidly.

CINCINNATI, Sunday, June 28.

Gov. TOD, in answer to an urgent letter from Gen. BURNSIDE, has made a strong appeal to the people of Ohio to organize for the defence of that State. He recommends all places of business to be closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the rest of the day devoted to the raising of volunteers. The various independent military companies of the city are rapidly completing their organization under the new militia law.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

WAR GAZETTE.

[OFFICIAL.]

New Regulations Volunteer Veteran Volunteers.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, June 26, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. —.—First—In order to increase the armies now in the field, volunteer infantry, cavalry and artillery may be enlisted at any time within ninety days from this date, in the respective States, under the regulation hereinafter mentioned. The volunteers so enlisted and sent to the three years' troops now in the field as may volunteer, in accordance with this order, will constitute a force to be designated "Veteran Volunteers."

The regulations for enlisting this force are as follows:

Second—The period of service for the enlistments and reenlistments above mentioned shall be for three years or during the war.

Third—All able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who have heretofore been enlisted and have served for not less than nine months, and can pass the examination required by the mustering regulations of the United States, may be enlisted under this order as veteran volunteers in accordance with the provisions hereinafter set forth.

Fourth—Every volunteer enlisted and mustered into the service as a veteran under this order, shall be entitled to receive from the United States one month's pay in advance, $13 (first installment of bounty, $50; premium, $2; total payment on enlistment, $65).

2. At the first regular pay day, or two months after enlistment, an additional installment of bounty will be paid of $50.

3. At the first regular pay day after six months' service, he shall be paid an additional installment of $50.

4. At the first regular pay day after the end of the first year's service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

5. At the first regular pay day after eighteen months' service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

6. At the first regular pay day after two years' service, an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

7. At the first regular pay day after two and a half years' service an additional installment of bounty will be paid—$50.

8. At the expiration of three years' service the remainder of the bounty will be paid—$75.

Fifth—If the Government shall not require these troops for the full period of three years, and they shall be mustered honorably out of the service before the expiration of their term of enlistment, they shall receive, upon being mustered out, the whole amount of bounty remaining unpaid, the same as if the full term had been served. The legal heirs of volunteers who die in service shall be entitled to receive the whole bounty remaining unpaid at the time of the soldier's death.

Sixth—Veteran volunteers enlisted under this order will be permitted at their option to enter old regiments now in the field, but their service will continue for the full term of their own enlistment, notwithstanding the expiration of the term for which the regiment was originally enlisted. New organizations will be effected only by persons who have been in service, and have shown themselves properly qualified for command. As a badge of honorable distinction service chevrons will be furnished by the War Department, to be worn by the veteran volunteers.

Seventh—Officers of regiments, whose terms have expired, will be authorized, on proper application and approval of their respective Governors, to raise companies and regiments within the period of sixty days, and, if the company or regiment authorized, to be raised shall be filled up and mustered into service within the said period of sixty days, the officers may be reappointed, at the date of their original commissions, and for the time engaged in recruiting they will be entitled to receive the pay belonging to their rank.

Eighth—Volunteers or militia now in service, whose term of service will expire within ninety days, and who shall then have been in service at least nine months, shall be entitled to the aforesaid bounty and premium of $402, provided they reenlist before the expiration of their present term for three years, from date of reenlistment or for the war, and said bounty and premium shall be paid in the manner herein provided for other troops reenlisting the service.

Ninth—After the expiration of ninety days from this date, volunteers serving in three years' organizations, who may reenlist for three years from the date of such reenlistment or for the war, shall be entitled to the aforesaid bounty and premium of $402, to be paid in the manner herein provided for other troops reenlisting the service.

Tenth—Officers in service, whose regiments or companies may reenlist in accordance with the provisions of this order, before the expiration of their present term, shall have their commissions continued so as to preserve their date of rank as fixed by their original muster into the United States service.

Eleventh—As soon after the expiration of their original term of enlistment as the exigencies of the service will permit, a furlough of thirty days will be granted to men who may reenlist in accordance with the provisions of this order.

Twelfth—Volunteers enlisted under this order will be credited as three years' men in the quotas of their respective States. Instructions for the appointment of recruiting officers, and for enlisting veteran volunteers, will be immediately issued to the Governors of States. By order of the Secretary of War.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 29.

MOVEMENT OF THE FLOATING POPULATION.

On Friday, the floating population of Washington began to take to itself railroad tickets and vanish. There was a flagra last night among the patriots who fight the rebellion withcontracts. To-day traders in sutlers' supplies inquire for transportation by sea and rail, and packing boxes are in request. The owners of real estate, and those who are otherwise chained here by interests that can't be packed into a trunk, are critical, savage and gloomy on the subject of the defences of Washington, and anew the Government is cursed for not having constructed a railroad to the deep waters of the Chesapeake below Annapolis, and so saved the communications of the Capital from the possibility of a new blockade of the Potomac, and a cutting of the Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio line. On the other hand, the patient and self-possessed wait the development of Lee upon the South Mountain, and watch for the disappointment or the waste of our opportunity to crush the army that sustains the rebellion.

THE CAPTURE OF THE GUSHING.

The possibility of the existence of traitors in our navy-yards and war ships, in numbers sufficient to effect the capture of them, right in New-England harbors, astonished thoughtful people here when the news of the loss of the cutter at Portland was whispered about on Saturday.

AFFAIRS AT NASSAU, N. P.

Saxt C. Hawley, our Consul at Nassau, is here, in impaired health. The country can ill afford his absence from our most important Consulate, for he is in an eminent degree qualified for the difficult duties of that post. The crowding of the harbor of Nassau and the filling up of the town with blockade-runners has doubled the cost of living there. Our system of administration, in its many imperfections, has no provision for a case like this; and knows no law nor precedent whereby to retain the services of first-class men in important places.

Mr. Hawley confirms the impression that has obtained here for some time, that the inefficiency of the Charleston blockade is principally due to a want of vigilance among the crews of our ships; and that this is owing to a belief that prevails with them, that the value of the prizes they may take will be wholly absorbed by the officials in New-York who manage the condemnation and sale of the vessels and cargoes. Mr. Hawley represents, also, that blockade running is considered at Nassau to be ten times as profitable and quite as safe as steamboating on the Hudson; and that the life of a well-managed vessel is equally

HEADQUARTERS

The fate of the Plantation Bitters is without precedent in the history of the world. They are at once the most powerful and speedy strengthening cordial and invigorant ever discovered. It requires but a single trial to understand this. Their purity can always be relied upon. They are composed of the celebrated California Herb, Cascadilla Bark, Dandelion, Chamomile Flowers, Lavender Flowers, Wintergreen, Anise, Clover Buds, Orange peel, Snake-root, Caraway, Coriander, Burdock.

S.—T.—1860—X, &c.

They are positively recommended to clergymen, public speakers, and persons of literary habits and sedentary life, who require free digestion, a relish for food, and clear mental faculties.

Delicate females, and weak persons are certain to find in these Bitters what they have so long looked for.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.

They create a healthy appetite.

They are an antidote to change of water and diet.

They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.

They strengthen the system and enlighten the mind.

They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.

They purify the blood and solidify the stomach.

They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.

They cure Diarrhœa, Cholera and Cholera Morbus.

They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They are the best Bitters in the world. They make the weak man strong, and are exhausted nature's great restorer.

The following startling and emphatic statements can be seen at our office.

Letter of Rev. R. F. Crane, Chaplain of the 107th New-York regiment:

NEAR AQUIA CREEK, March 4, 1862.

Owing to the great exposure and terrible decomposition after the battle of Antietam, I was utterly prostrated and very sick. My stomach would not retain medicine. An article called Plantation Bitters, prepared by Dr. Drake, of New-York, was prescribed to give me strength and an appetite. To my great surprise they gave me immediate relief. Two bottles almost allowed me to join my regiment. * * * * I have since seen them used in many cases, and am free to say, for hospital or private purposes I know of nothing like them.

Rev. R. F. CRANE, Chaplain.

Letter from the Rev. N. E. Giles, St. Clairsville, Pa.

GENTLEMEN: You were kind enough, on a former occasion to send me a half dozen bottles of Plantation Bitters, for $5 50. My wife having derived so much benefit from the use of those Bitters, I desire her to continue them, and you will please send us six bottles more for the money inclosed.

I am, very truly, yours,

N. E. GILES, Pastor German Reformed Church.

SOLDIERS' HOME, SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, CINCINNATI, OHIO, Jan. 15, 1862.

* * * * * * *

I have given your Plantation Bitters to hundreds of our noble soldiers who stop here, more or less disabled from various causes, and the effect is marvelous and gratifying.

Such a preparation as this is I heartily wish in every family, in every hospital, and at hand on every battle field.

G. W. D. ANDREWS, Superintendent.

Dr. W. A. Giles, Surgeon of the Tenth Vermont regiment, writes: "I wish every soldier had a bottle of Plantation Bitters. They are the most effective, perfect, and harmless tonic I ever used."

WILLARD'S HOTEL, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22, 1862.

GENTLEMEN:—We require another supply of your Plantation Bitters, the popularity of which daily increases with the guests of our house. Respectfully,

SYKES, CHADWICK & CO.

FINANCIAL.

LAKE ERIE AND PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND BONDS.

The Lake Erie and Pacific Railroad Company, in the Central portion, now offer for sale their entire issue of Gold and Currency Bonds, bearing seven and eight per cent. interest, payable semi-annually in the City of New-York.

These bonds are secured by a DEED OF TRUST, constituting the FIRST and ONLY lien upon the entire road, its franchises, appurtenances, rolling stock, &c.

It extends along the White Water Valley, from Rushville to Union, a distance of about sixty miles, and passes through the richest, best cultivated and most densely populated portion of the State of Indiana.

The road is the CENTRAL SECTION of the other two main trunk LINES, connecting the great Southwest at LOUISVILLE, Ky., on the Ohio River, and on an entirely deep water, TOLEDO and SANDUSKY, on Lake Erie.

The Company is wholly without debt (except its bonded debt) and being strong in its local traffic, and connecting with roads that must necessarily largely increase the income of its extension, the BOARD OF DIRECTORS, with great confidence, invite the attention of capitalists to these securities, believing that they offer an opportunity for a first class railroad investment, than which, in their judgment, there is no better to be had.

The published statements of the Company, together with those showing the location and advantages of the Road, can be had from either of the Trustees of the Deed of Trust, in this City, named below, and from either of whom the bonds are only to be had.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 26 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the Hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a character. In 20 years practice he has cured more cases of Secret Disease and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take less time and little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without hindrance of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the blood—eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment at home, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 26 Lispenard-st., the only place. Call; send or write.

SURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS' SUCCESSOR, Graduated with Dr. WARD, No. 26 Lispenard-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, buboes, ulcers, cancers, secondary and constitutional Syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c. The Proprietor of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, thoroughly speedily cured. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, the discoverers and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1840. N. B.—Those who have used their preventives have proved without effect and for a chronic, or endless, Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a positive and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

MANHOOD AND THE VIGOR OF YOUTH regained in three days by Dr. POWERS' ESSENCE OF LIFE. This wonderful agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution, radically curing Seminal Weakness, Sexual Debility, Impotency, Premature Decay, Nervousness, Mental and Physical Incapacity, resulting from self-abuse, &c. One time reduced to cure the most inveterate cases in one week. Failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as its effects are permanent. Young man, are you subject to that soul and body destroying disease, secret habits? Dr. POWERS' invigorating Essence is a never-failing cure, sold by WALTER POWERS, M. D., No. 26 Lispenard-st., between Broadway and Church, New-York.

DR. COBBOLD, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, Medical College, Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st. to No. 714 Broadway, very convenient to the office of Dr. Ward, Lispenard-st., between Chambers and Reade-sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place, where he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present speciality, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case, gonorrhœa, or stricture of long standing. Strictures of urethra, prostatic enlargement, seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—Dr. C. is a graduate of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE confidentially consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 20 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. WARD'S MAGICAL INVIGORATORS, IN the form of Pills, will, in fifteen minutes after being taken, make the recipient as vigorous as if nature had never been retarded or debilitated. To the unmarried or single, in every physical exigency, this unrivaled medicine is earnestly recommended as a complete restorative to health in every case where manhood has been impaired. Procured of Dr. WARD, No. 26 Lispenard-st., between Broadway and Church-st. Call or send for circulars.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 9 Division-st., New-York, the only place. Beware of bogus Dr. Hunters. The City is full of knaves, up to every trick to rob him of his great reputation as a skillful and reliable physician. No other office but No. 9 Division-st. Established in 1834. Eight separate rooms and a private entrance.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions, from whatever cause, and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office No. 26 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

ADVICE TO LADIES.—IN ALL CASES where infallible medicines are desired, or mode of treatment that never fails, call upon Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, author of "The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion," who treats female complaints exclusively. Office No. 129 Liberty-st.

DRS. DE FORREST & BROOKS, NO. 131 Franklin-st., New-York, will speedily cure every form of secret disease, or in every case refund the money. Charges low. Private entrance.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening nauseous of all other remedies; cures in half the time in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 9 Division-st. Book for 16 three-cent stamps, 100 pages, illustrated illustrations. The best work out.

REYNGWELL'S PATENT GAS GOVERNOR lessens gas bills 15 to 25 per cent. Attested by many thousand consumers. Send for a circular. We sell exclusive agencies to parties in the United States. Office No. 128 Nassau-st., New-York.

IMPORTANT FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

ARRIVAL OF THE GEORGE GRISWOLD.

The Louisiana State Bank to Continue Business.

Four Steamers Burnt by Rebel Cavalry at Plaquemine.

Details of the Second Assault on Port Hudson.

Preparations for a Third Assault.

VOLUNTEERS FOR THE FORLORN HOPE.

GEN. SHERMAN RECOVERING.

The steamship George Griswold, from New-Orleans on the 21st inst., arrived at this port yesterday. Her services are due Saturday.

The following paragraph appears in the Era, of the 21st:

"We are authorized to state that the Louisiana State Bank will continue its business as heretofore. The course is authorized by the authorities, upon the unanimous recommendation of the Commissioners appointed for that Bank, after a full examination of its affairs."

The Era also has the following:

"We learn that there is a rebel force of two regiments of cavalry and one of infantry, with a battery of six brass field pieces, under command of Col. Gardening (Brigadier-General) J. P. Major, at Cheneyville, about twelve miles in the rear of Plaquemine. On Thursday, 18th inst., at 6 o'clock in the morning, about 200 cavalry belonging to this force, under command of Col. Fantana, dashed into Plaquemine, which was not guarded by a military force, and burned the steamers Anglo-American, Southerner, Michael L. J. Spice and Sagar; also, 75 bales of cotton, which they found on the levee, and a barge, called the Belfast, which was about two miles down the bayou.

There were about thirty convalescent soldiers belonging to the Twenty-eighth Maine at Plaquemine, who were made prisoners, together with some four or five civilians. All the prisoners were taken to Indian Village, into the presence of Col. Major, and paroled. They were courteously treated by the rebel commander, and the sick soldiers were furnished with ambulances.

Among the prisoners were Quartermaster Capt. H. Wyman and a Lieutenant.

Capt. Albert Sumner, Provost-Marshal, succeeded in making his escape.

The captured civilians were allowed to depart and go where they pleased.

OUR PORT HUDSON CORRESPONDENCE.

Progress of the Siege of Port Hudson—Events Since the 27th May—Action of June 14—Brilliant Behavior of our Right Wing—Hospital Incidents—Important General Order—Newspaper Veracity—Rebel Deserters—The Future.

Maj.-Gen. Auger's Headquarters, Barnes' Post Hudson, Monday, June 15, 1863.

Here we are still, among these grand old magnificent forests, with the almost incessant roar of artillery and musketry in our ears; the desultory firing kept up night and day, being enough to keep the desperate rebels, one would imagine, perpetually without rest. They must certainly attach a deep importance to this stronghold, or human endurance would scarcely rack and contract the dreadful ordeal to which we have subjected them for the past two or three weeks.

ADVANCE SINCE THE 27TH.

Since the 27th, on which day occurred the attacks of which I have sent you an account, there has been nothing going on here of a nature to be made public, or which could be said to go beyond mere preparations for future operations, and investing the enemy more closely than ever. The bloody results of that day taught us what the people of the North are not always ready to believe, viz.: That it is far easier to talk of taking a strongly fortified place than to do it, and our brave fellows are now paying the dear penalty of that insane supineness which ever permitted such a fortress as Port Hudson to be built, when we could, at one time, have prevented it with scarcely more than a corporal's guard.

All that the 27th of May left us we not only retain, but have gone far beyond. Along our whole line, from the extreme right to the extreme left, we have been gradually gaining upon the enemy, dismounting their guns as fast as they are remounted; picking off, by our splendid sharpshooters, every man who dared to show his head above their ramparts, and by these means rendering their armaments almost useless, as we steal up closer and closer to them. In some places we have got our batteries to within 300 yards of them, and it is really terrible to peep through the embrasures of one of them and almost look down the throats of the enemy's missiles, so close to us in front.

ACTION OF JUNE 14.

This matters continued until yesterday, when the commanding General, deeming the time had arrived to give the rebels another strong dose, gave the order for one more simultaneous attack.

It was as late as 10 P. M., of Saturday, June 13, that Gen. Augur, who had just returned from the headquarters of Gen. Banks, told his Staff that they were to be in motion at 3 A. M. of the next day. We all immediately hurried off to snatch a few hours' rest, and when I awoke at 3 o'clock I found the General and his Staff already at breakfast. In half an hour afterwards they were all off to the field, whither I speedily followed them.

Before dawn the most terrific cannonading commenced along our whole line that ever stunned mortal ears. The shells bursting over Port Hudson, mingled with their own firing and that of our fleet, and the dense clouds of our artillery, gave the place the appearance of one vast conflagration just about to burst into flame.

After two hours of this dreadful cannonading, there was a comparative lull, and the sharp and continuous rattle of musketry told where the work of death was going on most furiously. This was at the right, where Gen. Grover's division was placed, and under him those gallant and fearless soldiers, Gens. Weitzel and Paine.

If Weitzel had the larger share in the work of the 27th, that duty seemed to-day to fall upon the command immediately under Gen. Paine.

The forces of the latter consisted of the Eighth New-Hampshire, Capt. Barnes, and the Fourth Wisconsin, under Capt. Moore, who were in advance as skirmishers. Behind these came five companies of the Fourth Massachusetts and the One Hundred and Tenth New-York, under Capt. Barlow, followed by four companies of the Third brigade. Closely upon these came the Third brigade, under Col. Goodwin, and composed of the Thirty-first Massachusetts, Lieut.-Col. Hopkins; Thirty-eighth Massachusetts, Maj. Richardson; Fifty-third Massachusetts, Col. Kimball; One Hundred and Fifty-sixth New-York, Col. Sharpe, and One Hundred and Seventy-fifth New-York, Col. Bryan, who was killed. Then the Second brigade, under Col. A. Paddock, and composed of the One Hundred and Thirty-third New-York, Col. Cummins, and the One Hundred and Seventy-third New-York, Maj. Galway; the rest of this brigade being detailed as skirmishers. After the Second came the First brigade, under Col. Pease, of the Twenty-eighth Connecticut, and composed of the Twenty-eighth Connecticut, the Fourth Massachusetts, Sol. Walker, and four companies of the One Hundred and Tenth New-York, under Maj. Hamilton. These were all fully manned by the necessary number of pioneers and Fifteen Massachusetts battery.

At 1 30 A. M., of Sunday, June 14, the column forged from the Clinton road and commenced moving. At dawn, at 4 A. M., the skirmishers moved right up to the scene of action—Gen. Paine being with them in advancing, and the deadly work commenced—the rebels pouring in upon them the most terrible volleys, and our dauntless men disdaining their way right up to the enemy's breastworks. For hours the carnage continued seriously—our determined soldiers, in spite of their General being seriously wounded, and in spite of the fearful odds against them of fighting against men snugly screened behind their barricades—keeping up the fight with the most indomitable bravery. It was impossible for any man, under their circumstances, to show more reckless disregard of death.

But Port Hudson was destined not to be carried this time—at that point—at any rate. Owing to the horrible inequalities of the ground, and the impediments which the overwhelming slaughter of our advance had created, the whole century was not able to come up as expected, and late in the afternoon our troops had to be withdrawn. During the latement part of the struggle, it is only fair to say that Col. Kimball, of the Fifty-third, and Col. Cummins, of the One Hundred and Thirty-third New-York, advanced most gallantly with their men to reinforce them in front.

It is impossible to overrate the courage and endurance which Gen. Paine showed on this occasion. Although so severely wounded in the leg as to be quite disabled, he would not consent to leave the field, but remained there during the long sultry day to cheer on his men, at the momentary risk of being killed by some rebel shot.

Various efforts were made by his men to get him off the field, or at least to get refreshment to him, and two gallant fellows, on two separate occasions, lost their lives in the attempt. One was E. P. Wood, private, of Company E, Eighth New-Hampshire, and the other Jean Williams, Company D, Thirty-first Massachusetts. I happened to be at the hospital when the latter poor fellow was brought in. He had been shot clean through the breast, and lingered but a few minutes after his arrival there.

While at this hospital, witnessing the horrible spectacle of the wounded being brought in—something more painful to contemplate than the battle-field itself—a personal incident occurred to me which was deeply impressive. I was dismounting from my horse, when a soldier, who was gazing at me most intently, said: "The owner of that saddle is dying within a few feet of you, over there"—pointing to where two or three dozen men were lying on the shady greensward, in all forms of mutilation. "Do you know me?" I asked. "No; but I know that saddle was Lieut. Bonn's. I've sat in it so often not to know it." Hurrying to the spot indicated, I found it was indeed too true. There lay the young and gallant Lieut. N. F. Bonn, of Co. D, Thirty-first Massachusetts, flat on his back, and—as it proved of his wound, as well may be—with his broad, manly bosom bared, and showing a rifle shot wound in the centre of his right breast.

Learning from his attendants, who were bending over and fanning him, that he was still conscious and might be spoken to, I bent forward and took his cold, clammy hand in mine. "Who is it?" he inquired, looking up languidly. "A friend—don't you remember who bought that saddle of you near the sugar house?" "Yes, I remember. Ah! Sir, you will have to set me down among the items." "Oh, no, Lieutenant, I hope not," I replied, although my heart belied my speech, for death seemed stamped upon every lineament. I left him as another glorious martyr to his country's cause; but I am glad to say that, at this moment of writing, I hear the ball has been extracted, that he is doing well, and hopes are entertained of his recovery. Judging from what his own men say of him, (and I find this one of the surest tests of merit,) a braver young man does not live in the United States service. Before leaving this hospital, I cannot refrain from bearing my testimony to the unceasing and faithful attention lavished upon the wounded which I noticed on the part of Surgeon L. C. Harwell, Medical Director of the Third Division.

Before Gen. Paine was wounded, he had succeeded in getting five regiments within three or four rods of the enemy's works,—some of the skirmishers actually getting inside.

Our loss on this occasion was very great—the killed, wounded and missing of Paine's command reaching to nearly seven hundred. A number of officers and privates (among them Capt. Stanyard, of the Eighth New-Hampshire, Lieut. Hasbley and Lieut. Newell, of the same) being wounded, were ordered in as prisoners, under threat of being shot from the enemy's works. Gen. Paine was shot below the knee of the left leg, shattering both bones, but hopes are still entertained of saving his leg. He was not brought off the field till night time, when his wounds was dressed and he immediately conveyed to New-Orleans.

While this was going on in one portion of Gen. Grover's command, the remainder, if not so hotly pressed, were scarcely less actively engaged.

At 2 A. M. the troops under Gen. Weitzel's immediate command got into motion from their present locality, (which they so gallantly won on the 27th of May, and have held ever since,) and advanced round to the left to Col. Dudley's front, leaving five companies on picket line. The attack—for assaults these demonstrations can scarcely be called—was made by two columns in two different places. The column on the right was composed of Grover's division and Weitzel's brigade, under command of Gen. Weitzel, while the left was composed of Gen. Emory's division, under command of Gen. Paine—whose doings I have just recorded. Col. Dudley's brigade, of Augur's division, was held in reserve.

The forces under Gen. Weitzel comprised his own brigade, formed of the Eighth Vermont, Lieut.-Col. Dillingham; Twelfth Connecticut, Lieut.-Col. Peck; Seventy-fifth New-York, Lieut.-Col. Babcock; One Hundred and Fourteenth New-York, Lieut.-Col. Perles, and two regiments of Grover's division—the Twenty-fourth Connecticut and Fifty-second Massachusetts.

The history of the action on the part of Gen. Weitzel would be but a counterpart that of Gen. Paine—the same obstacles to overcome, the same indomitable bravery in opposing them, the same temporary suspension of hostilities in the face of opposition too elaborately difficult to be surmounted for the moment.

Of what was going on at the extreme left, under Gen. Dudley, I am not yet so well informed, for correspondents cannot be omnipresent, though many would have them so, and I would rather tell your readers nothing than give them incorrect information. I, therefore, do not feel myself in a position either to support or oppose the rumors which I hear everywhere—and among officers of very high rank—that the right wing did not come up as promptly to the mark as it was supposed they would have to do, if we would divide the enemy and keep them from concentrating their power, as they certainly did, upon our valorous and devoted right wing. The very same complaint was made—with what amount of truth time alone will decide—against our left wing in the great attack of our right wing on the 27th May.

To whatever cause it may be attributed, it is certainly lamentable to see anything like a want of complete cooperation in moments of such intense consequence to the nation. Go where we will, do what we may, it seems to be our everlasting fate to be allowing ourselves to suffer for want of concentration and cooperation. The very same portion of the enemy who were so desperately contending with our right wing under Weitzel, on the 27th May, are actually asserted to have—at a later hour of the day—opposed us at other portions of our line, which could not have been possible had our movements been simultaneous. With a plan so well concocted, it is quite impossible to suppose that such an oversight could have formed part of the scheme, and therefore we are driven—in both events of the 27th May and the 14th June—to ascribe failure to some lack of punctuality in carrying out directions, somewhere or other. All I can answer for is that that portion of the line which had been most immediately under my own observation (Gens. Maj.-Gen. Augur) on both these occasions, came up promptly up to the orders given to it.

REPORT AND GENERAL ORDER.

But the grand questions which the North will be greatly asking are, "What have we gained?" "Where do we stand now?" My only reply is, if not exactly where we want to be, infinitely nearer and better off than we were—just as certain of success and determined to achieve it as we ever were—and our men are all to the very best of spirits and health.

As a proof of what our men are made of I have only to refer to the following order of Gen. Banks, and to tell you of the success it has met with. Taking it for granted that the affair will be matter for history long before this is in print, I presume I run no risk in sending it to you:

Headquarters Department of the Gulf, Nineteenth Army Corps, Barnes' Post Hudson, June 15, 1863.

General Orders No. 49.—The Commanding General congratulates the troops before Port Hudson upon the steady advance made upon the enemy's works, and in confident of an immediate and triumphant issue of the contest. We are at all points upon the threshold of his fortifications. One more advance and they are ours!

For the last duty that victory imposes, the Commanding General summons the bold men of the corps to the organization of a storming column of a thousand men, to vindicate the Flag of the Union, and the memory of its defenders who have fallen! Let them come forward!

Officers who lead the column of victory in this last assault, may be assured of the just recognition of their services by promotion, and every officer and soldier who shares its perils and its glory shall receive a medal fit to commemorate the first grand success of the campaign of 1863 for the freedom of the Mississippi. His name will be placed in General Orders upon the roll of honor.

Division Commanders will at once report the names of the officers and men who may volunteer for this service, in order that the organization of the column may be completed without delay.

By command of Major-Gen. BANKS.

Richard B. Irwin, Assistant Adjutant-General.

Official:

Geo. B. Halsted, Assistant Adjutant-General.

To the glory of our army be it said, that this order was not many hours circulated among them before the entire list was filled, and would have been, doubtless, had the call been for more. I will try and get you the earliest possible copy of the names of those brave men who are thus ready to come forward, with their lives in their hands, in defence of our cause. Certainly to them the country will owe no ordinary debt of gratitude. At any time such devotion would be splendid, but coming so immediately upon what many would have considered discouragements, it unquestionably does honor to the whole nation.

"QUICKEST INTELLIGENCE."

I dare say your readers felt, perhaps you yourself felt, disappointed at the appearance of the Times of June 6, with so little information respecting the affair at Port Hudson, as compared to the flaming accounts in one or two of your contemporaries. Two things prevented your getting your account so soon. First, that it was against the expressed wish of the Commanding General (properly anxious to divulge as little as possible of operations yet in progress.) Secondly, that it was not possible to get the bare facts together for your readers to receive from New-Orleans by such a date, and facts, I presume, are what they require. If not, I could easily forestall all competition by writing your a description of a battle, from pure imagination, before it even occurs; and I venture to say it would be found quite as near the truth as much of the correspondential stuff with which Northern readers were regaled in this struggle for "quickest" intelligence.

I should be sorry, indeed, to hear the Times subjected to the ridicule and anathema which I heard heaped upon one of your "enterprising" contemporaries, for the singularly incorrect account of the doings at Port Hudson on the 27th of May, and this by the whole army, wherever the subject was discussed. I found Gen. Weitzel and Staff in their tent roaring with laughter over his attack, with "clubbed muskets and bayonets"—at his rushing his men "at the enemy's works on the river side," (about which he never went,) and also driving them out of the celebrated six-gun battery that did such terrible execution upon the steamer Mississippi. Then we have a negro soldier tearing the flesh from a rebel's face with his teeth!—instead of all which you might just as well have read a chapter in the Arabian Nights.

Again we have any quantity of people killed who will have to be resuscitated, but whose friends—in the meantime—won't thank the writer for the unnecessary fears that have been caused. For instance, in a list of only seven names, four of them—Gen. Nickerson, Col. Clarke, Sixth Michigan; Col. Paine, Second Louisiana, and Col. ——— (Dudley) of the Thirtieth Massachusetts, are described as killed, whereas not one of them received a scratch; and one of them, Col. Dudley, called here only half an hour ago, looking as well as ever I saw him.

I might ill halt a column with the outrageous blunders of this New-Orleans letter, to which I would not have alluded but for two very good reasons; first, because I would have your readers know that intelligence is not always best if quickest; and secondly, because such egregious carelessness tends to throw discredit upon any and every newspaper correspondent who is zealously looking after truth in his narratives.

They are evidently counting upon reinforcements coming to them, and, upon two or three occasions, flying squads of cavalry have molested our pickets. Col. (now General, by report,) Grierson is, however too much for them; and they take to flight as soon as they hear of his coming. If the rebels in Port Hudson are counting upon external aid, they will find what we have so often taught them, that it is one thing for them to be fighting us behind their intrenchments and another thing to meet us in the open field.

They all speak highly of the extraordinary efficiency of our artillery. Lieut. Terry, of the Richmond, has been playing havoc among them with his 9-inch marine battery, completely silencing everything before him, and the batteries of Holcomb, Hinkle, Mack and MacLaflin dismount their guns as fast as they put them up.

REBEL DESERTERS.

One very significant symptom of the state of feeling existing among the rebel soldiers in Port Hudson is the large numbers of deserters that come over into our lines. Not a day passes but a number are seen going by us to headquarters; and during the last three weeks no fewer than 200 must have made their escape to us. Desertion among the rebels is certain death, if caught, and therefore when we think of the risk that these men incur in attempting to escape, threatened with death in front from our men, and also in the rear from their own, it must be a strong inducement indeed that leads them to undertake it.

Hitherto they show no symptom of starvation, but all confess themselves heartily disgusted with the iron rule to which they are subjected. They assert that Gardner is determined to hold out to the last.

They had a 9-inch columbiad, reported to go by the name of "Lady Davis," which bothered us for some time, but our fleet stopped his tongue. On our side we had one 30-lb. Parrott gun of the First Indiana Artillery, under Capt. MacLaflin, which the rebels christened "Whistling Dick." Dick has become a perfect nuisance to them. As fast as they mount a gun he knocks it over, having served one so five times; he has, besides, burnt up their commissary buildings and stores, and made general havoc.

However supplied they may be in other matters, it is evident that the rebels are running very short of ammunition. This is proved by the chary way in which they fire at us, except when actually attacked, and also that, in reclaiming our dead for burial, we invariably found them stripped of ammunition, and sometimes boots, even when their guns and pistols were left behind.

THE FUTURE.

The air is heavy with impending events, and every one—from the commanding General to the poorest private—seems to know the imminent value of the blow about to be struck. When or how that is to be, is more than I can tell you; but it will be decisive when it does come, and that may be any hour.

New-Orleans, Sunday, June 21, 1863.

Since the departure of the Creole, which was dispatched for dispatches, the steamer Dorothy has arrived, with two passengers—wild Irishmen; at 2 P. M., burned a fishing sloop, cause unknown. Jun. 21, latitude 41°, longitude 66° 10', burned the schooner Rosamond; collected three men from her belonging to New-Orleans; same day, burned the bark Goodspeed. June 22, burned the fishing schooner Florence; same day captured the schooner Florence, put all the prisoners aboard of her, including the crews of the schooners Elizabeth Jones, Eugene Chesebrough and Rapido, which were captured and burned the same day. 23d, burned the schooners Ada and Wickedover. 24th, lat. 43° 10', lon. 67° 43', captured the packet ship Shakespeare, from Liverpool to Boston, with 180 passengers; was anxious to burn her, she being loaded with iron plates, &c.; tried to capture schooners to put the passengers aboard; but failed, and had to let her go, boarding her in $150,000; same day captured the schooner Archer, chased the Shakespeare and put the Archer's crew aboard; hearing that Federal cruisers were after the Tacony, and fearing recognition, burned the Archer, transferring everything to the Archer, thence came direct to Portland; picked up two fishermen for pilots, but they would not serve; took the positions from the Coast Survey charts; got in at sunset and anchored below. Had no communication with the shore.

Lieut. Reed also says he waited till 12:30 A. M., when the moon went down, then moved direct to the cutter Caleb Cushing in two boats, with muffled oars; boarded her, one boat on each side, seized her crew without resistance and ironed them, capturing Lieut. Davenport as he came on deck, weighed anchor, being unable to slip the cable, and started at 3 A. M., going out by Henry's Sound, towed by the two boats ahead, and followed by the Archer, as fast as her limit would permit; laid in waiting outside for the Archer. When the steamers attacked us, we could only fire round shots, and were obliged to fire stones and pieces of iron.

Lieut. Reed belongs in Mississippi, near Vicksburg, and graduated from Annapolis in 1860. He came in with the intention of burning the shipping and two gunboats, which he learned were building here from a coal-laden English schooner, bound from Pictou to New-York. He also intended to catch the steamer Forest City and burn her.

All the Tacony's crew came out of Mobile in the Florida, except the three taken from the Byzantium.

The Tacony passed many steamers during her cruise. On the day the Byzantium and Goodspeed were burned, a large steamer, showing the French flag, sailed around the burning vessels, examined them, and passed on.

Capt. Gould, who died this morning from an accidental shot, commanded the Archer, last night, was a stevedore and pilot, and not connected with a tugboat, as before stated. He was out of Mr Cazaux's old mess.

The rebel prisoners are strongly confined in Fort Preble, with double guards.

THE REBEL PIRATES.

THE LAST OF THE BARK TACONY.

Her Crew in Portland Harbor on Board the Schooner Archer.

The Revenue Cutter Caleb Cushing Cut Out by Them.

Two Armed Packet Steamers Sent in Pursuit.

The Cushing Abandoned and Blown Up by Her Captors.

The Entire Party Prisoners in Fort Preble.

We yesterday published a series of dispatches from Portland, Maine, giving the particulars of a daring raid made into Portland harbor, on Friday night, by a party of rebels under command of Lieut. Reed, from the pirate bark Tacony, who succeeded in running out the revenue cutter Caleb Cushing, and putting to sea with her. The Cushing was provisioned for a two months' cruise. The packet steamers Chesapeake and Forest City were immediately armed and manned and started in pursuit. The rest of the story is told in the following telegrams:

PORTLAND, Me., Saturday, June 27—4½ P. M.

The Chesapeake has just arrived up, while the Forest City has stopped off Fort Preble to land the prisoners.

Lieut. John M. Goode, of the Tenth Maine regiment, who was a volunteer on board the Chesapeake, reports that she started on the chase at 11 A. M., and that soon afterward the Forest City came along, which had been in waiting so as to act in concert with the Chesapeake.

It was decided that the Chesapeake should take the lead in boarding the Cushing, and that the Forest City should follow closely up.

In the meantime the Cushing was firing from her big gun. She fired five shots at the Forest City, one of the top which carried her boat, and three at the Chesapeake.

The Chesapeake fired only one shot at the Cushing, which fell short.

Of the three shots fired at the Chesapeake, two fell short, and one—a round of grape—went through her rigging.

The rebels, seeing that the steamers were ready to board the Cushing, at 12½ o'clock abandoned her and went to a schooner near by, leaving the crew of the cutter in another boat, which was picked up by the Chesapeake.

The rebels, previous to abandoning the Cushing, set her on fire, and at 1:50 P. M., she blew up, making a tremendous report, as she had twenty-four hundred pounds of powder on board of her.

The Forest City then pursued the schooner and captured it.

The regular crew of the Cushing report that the schooner above mentioned came in yesterday afternoon, with a detachment on board, composed of a number of the pirate Florida's crew, who had previously captured the schooner. This schooner the pirates then sent into our harbor to destroy the two gunboats building here. As a matter of course, the schooner came in this morning, and no one for a moment suspected that there were any rebels on board of her.

The first work of the schooner was to seize the Cushing and put her crew in irons, and then steal quietly off with her in the night—taking her through the islands by the lower passage and into Hussey's Sound—towing her out with two rowboats ahead, as the wind was very light at the time.

The schooner captured is the Archer.

The rebels intended to burn the two gunboats building here, but did not get the chance.

STATEMENT OF LIEUT. REED.

PORTLAND, Me., Sunday, June 28.

I have been at Fort Preble this afternoon, seen the prisoners, and obtained an account of their cruise from Lieut. Reed, who courteously answered all questions. I have collated his report with all important memorandums from his private note-book, furnished me by the Commandant of the fort, as follows:

Lieut. Reed reported on board the Florida, in Mobile, at the close of 1862. He describes her as a small sloop-of-war, with eight rifled guns and 120 men. On the 16th of January we left Mobile Bay, with steam and every sail set to the topmast studding-sail, making 14½ knots. On the 17th, at daylight, saw a big sloop-of-war, supposed the Brooklyn, which passed within half a mile; she showed three lights and passed to the northward; 19th, burned the brig Estella; early on the morning of the 23d left Havana, and steamed to the eastward; burned the brig Windward, letting her crew go in a small boat. Off Cardenas Light burned the Carrie Ann—she drifted into Cardenas harbor; 31st, chased by a National gunboat; had the heels of her; Feb. 12, captured the clipper-ship Jacob Bell, showed the Yankee flag on hailing her; burned her 20th; March 6, captured the ship Star of Peace, burned her at 4 P. M.; March 12, burned the schooner Aldebaran; March 29, captured the bark Lapwing; christened her C. S. corvette Oreto, and she captured the ship Commonwealth; 17th April, bonding (quarry—burning?) her; the Lapwing was afterwards burned; 20th March, captured the bark M. J. Colcord and burned her 15th April; April 22, burned the bark Henrietta; 24th, burned the ship Oneida; May 6th, latitude 5° 24' south, longitude 24° 22', captured the brig Clarence; christened her C. S. corvette Florida No. 2.

Lieut. Reed states that the Florida captured fourteen vessels in all up to this time. The Kate Dyer was one; the other names I could not learn.

Lieut. Reed was transferred to the brig Clarence, with a crew, as before reported. She was then off Cape St. Roque; ran up north till June 6; when off Cape Hatteras burned the bark Whistling Wind, with coal for the United States navy; 7th, captured the schooner Alfred H. Partridge and bonded her; 9th, burned the brig Mary Alsina, loaded with commissary stores; 15th, lat. 37° north, lon. 72° 30' west, captured the bark Tacony; finding her faster than the Clarence, transferred everything and burned the Clarence; christened the Tacony the bark Florida, (which accounts for the steamer Florida being reported off our coast;) same day captured the schooners N. A. Shindler and Kate Stuart; bonded the Kate Stuart for $7,000, and sent all the prisoners aboard; burned the N. A. Shindler; same day, captured and bonded the brig Arabella with a neutral cargo; passed a gunboat without being noticed. June 16, latitude 27° 42', longitude 72° 30', burned the brig Umpire. June 22, latitude 42° 20', longitude 62° 04', bonded the ship Rowena, with two passengers—wild Irishmen; at 2 P. M., burned a fishing sloop, cause unknown. Jun. 21, latitude 41°, longitude 66° 10', burned the schooner Rosamond; collected three men from her belonging to New-Orleans; same day, burned the bark Goodspeed. June 22, burned the fishing schooner Florence; same day captured the schooner Florence, put all the prisoners aboard of her, including the crews of the schooners Elizabeth Jones, Eugene Chesebrough and Rapido, which were captured and burned the same day. 23d, burned the schooners Ada and Wickedover. 24th, lat. 43° 10', lon. 67° 43', captured the packet ship Shakespeare, from Liverpool to Boston, with 180 passengers; was anxious to burn her, she being loaded with iron plates, &c.; tried to capture schooners to put the passengers aboard; but failed, and had to let her go, boarding her in $150,000; same day captured the schooner Archer, chased the Shakespeare and put the Archer's crew aboard; hearing that Federal cruisers were after the Tacony, and fearing recognition, burned the Archer, transferring everything to the Archer, thence came direct to Portland; picked up two fishermen for pilots, but they would not serve; took the positions from the Coast Survey charts; got in at sunset and anchored below. Had no communication with the shore.

Lieut. Reed also says he waited till 12:30 A.
